250 Battle Fire Near Courtenay

A force of 250 men are fighting a bush fire four miles south of the Elk River Timber Company's camp eight which now covers 1,100 acres.

Twelve cold deck piles have been destroyed by the fire and all the felled and bucked timber in the operation overrun by the blaze, thought it may not have been destroyed.

Firefighters said today the fire was reasonably well in hand and that there was no danger to settlements unless a wind springs up.

Firefighters, aided by members of the South Vancouver Island Militia-Rangers have about finished mopping up a blaze in the Sooke watershed.

Churchill Meets Gaulle in Cairo

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Churchill had a long conversation with Gen. Charles de Gaulle, leader of the fighting French, in Cairo recently, the fighting French press service announced today.

It said the conversation was "most cordial and covered all subjects relative to French-British co-operation in the Middle East."

It already has been announced that Prime Minister J. C. Smuts of South Africa conferred with Mr. Churchill when the latter was in Cairo en route to Moscow.

Power Shortage Looms for Japs

NEW YORK (AP) — Berlin radio broadcast today a Tokyo dispatch reporting that Japan faces an electric power shortage which necessitates additional shut-downs on industries not vital to the war.

Dispatch said recent heavy rains made it possible to postpone from Aug. 14 to Aug. 21 start of a new program of closing non-essential plants for two or three additional days each month. Word "additional" indicated that some reduction already has occurred.

Nazis Bomb Town

A SOUTHEAST ENGLISH COAST TOWN (CP) — Two high-flying German planes bombed this town today causing widespread property damage. An entire row of shops was demolished by a 1,000-pound bomb scoring a direct hit. Only one woman was hurt. A church and several public buildings were damaged.

More U.S. Troops

CAIRO (AP) — Fresh U.S. army contingents, including ground troops for American air force squadrons operating in the desert, have been debarked in this war theatre, it was disclosed tonight.

They brought first of the new type U.S. army helmets seen in the Middle East.

Attack U-Boat

STOCKHOLM (AP) — Swedish warships dropped 40 depth charges today in an effort to smash a foreign submarine which sank the steamer C. F. Liljevalch out of a convoy in Swedish coastal waters off Vaestervik, on the east coast.

Cement Shortage

VANCOUVER (CP) — Dealers predicted today that no cement would be available in Greater Vancouver for building or any other commercial use for the next month or six weeks, since the entire output of cement plants is required for government construction projects.

One result is that Vancouver's program for building six miles of cement sidewalks in scattered sections will be held up.

Intercept Nazis

FOLKESTONE, ENG. (CP) — Cannon fire in the skies off the Southeast coast this afternoon was taken as an indication that German planes attempting to approach the coast had been intercepted. The roar of high-flying aircraft was audible in the hazy skies.

Brazil Mobs Demand Action Against Axis

ONLY ONE MAN CAME BACK—ONE OF WAR'S HERO SQUADS—Here is the last picture made of the scrappy and heroic U.S. navy aerial torpedo squadron members who were shot down to a man in the battle of Midway—but not until they had sunk three Japanese airplane carriers. Victoria Boys, J. Twigg, R. Bell In Heavy Raids

By LOUIS V. HUNTER

LONDON (CP) — Canadian Spitfire pilots who formed part of the United Nations fighter screen around American flying fortresses on their first bombing mission from British bases were credited today with the destruction of one Nazi fighter, the probable destruction of four and the damaging of two others.

Credited with one Focke-Wulf 190 probably destroyed was Sgt. H. P. Fuller of Hortonville, N.S., who after tangling with eight enemy craft saw one of them heading toward the ground with smoke streaming from it.

The engines of the Spitfires were still warm when other Canadian squadrons roared into the night to continue the air offensive that will become heavier as United States forces muster their strength on this side of the Atlantic.

A Boston intruder squadron whipped over German airdromes in Northern France where another German machine was shot down. At the same time a Hampden bomber squadron commanded by Wing Cmdr. John Twigg of Victoria joined the R.A.F. force which took advantage of the weather to deliver another bomb blow at Germany.

Two young Canadians, P.O. Stephen Best of Woodstock, Ont., and P.O. S. P. Marlett, Lillooet, B.C., were aboard the Boston intruder squadron which destroyed the returning German aircraft over a station in occupied France.

SET NAZI AFIRE

Sqdn. Ldr. P. L. Caldwell of Paisley, Scotland, was the pilot, and with the Canadians, spotted the enemy plane as it approached its home 'drome' for a landing. The Boston got it in its sights and made short work of it. "The plane burst into flames immediately after we hit it," reported Best. "The back part of the fuselage dropped off. Then the aircraft simply disintegrated." Osnabrueck, the target of the bombing raid, was plastered with explosive and incendiary bombs and the navigator in Twigg's air-

Marines Consolidate Positions

Hint Navy Battle Key to Solomons

MELBOURNE (CP) — Big sea battles still brewing in bitterly-contested waters of the Solomon Island chain may prove the turning point in the fight for the barrier bases north of Australia, a special correspondent of the Melbourne Herald reported today from a south Pacific port.

Latest reports of fighting there, he continued, emphasize the cardinal fact underlying the whole future operation: That since the Americans now apparently have established satisfactory footholds in the islands, victory must go eventually to the side controlling the sea lanes.

The Allies, he said, cannot win the islands as long as Japan can fling in fresh forces, nor can they maintain their hold there unless they can keep the marine supply lanes open.

His conclusion was that the battles were likely to develop rather than diminish in magnitude once the Solomons were in Allied hands and the operation became increasingly an Allied offensive.

New Zealand dispatches said an Allied fleet "of great strength" was harrying Japanese warships in the surrounding seas, and the marines were reported systematically tracking down whatever enemy forces remain in the islands.

Admiral Gormley Splits Sea Forces

Dispatches said Vice-Admiral Robert L. Gormley, leader of the sea-borne invasion, had probably split his fleet into a force to stand guard over the troops ashore and a second group fanning out to cripple any Japanese reinforcement attempts.

"So far, there is no indication that Allied losses exceed expectations or have seriously reduced the strength of the offensive," a New Zealand correspondent reported.

Sweeping far out over the southern seas, Allied airmen continued to pound Japanese ships and harbors, bombing vessels at Kavieng, New Ireland, northwest of the Solomons, and raiding enemy-occupied Timor Island in the East Indies for the third time in three days.

A navy communique issued in Washington showed the attack 12 days ago on the Solomons to have been a mighty onslaught which caught the Japanese flat-footed in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area, one of their most valuable bases.

The harbor of Tulagi is one of the best in the southwest Pacific and the airfield on Guadalcanal makes that island a gigantic air-craft carrier anchored athwart the sea lane from America to Australia.

Without divulging details of the still-continuing and still-growing battle, the communique gave these assurances that the first phase has ended in defeat for the Japanese:

Marines Overcoming Jap Resistance

1. The marines have made several landings in the Guadalcanal-Tulagi area, "rapidly" overcoming enemy resistance, and their captured shore positions "have since been developed and are now well established."

2. Japanese naval forces closed in for action with the Allied fleet only one night, Aug. 8-9, and backed off "before reaching the vessels engaged in the landing operations."

3. Enemy air attempts on the first two days of the landings inflicted only "minor damage" on the American troops.

Auchinleck Ousted

Gen. Alexander Takes Command In Middle East

LONDON (CP) — Gen. Sir Harold Alexander, who commanded the British forces in the Burma campaign, tonight was appointed commander-in-chief in the Middle East. He succeeds Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck.

The British war office announcement made no mention of any new assignment for Gen. Auchinleck, who was in command when the Allied armies retreated from Libya almost to the gates of Alexandria under Axis attack. Gen. Auchinleck has been in command in the Middle East since July 2, 1941, when Gen. Sir Archibald P. Wavell was assigned to India. He took personal command of the British 8th army in the desert fighting last June 25.

Gen. Alexander, who once before succeeded Gen. Auchinleck—in December, 1940, as commander of the British Isles southern army—headed the British and Chinese forces in their bitter but unsuccessful campaign against the Japanese invaders of Burma last spring.

Lt.-Gen. B. L. Montgomery, former commander of the southeastern command in Britain, was appointed to command of the 8th army in Egypt, succeeding Lt. Gen. Neil M. Ritchie, who retired from the field when Gen. Auchinleck personally took over.

Name F. McKenzie To C.C.F. Post

VANCOUVER (CP) — Frank J. McKenzie of Vancouver and Revelstoke, has been appointed provincial secretary of the Co-operative Commonwealth Federation for British Columbia. He succeeds Clifford Greer, who has enlisted with the R.C.A.F.

Mr. McKenzie, an executive member of the Reconstruction Party at the time it federated with the Socialist Party to form the C.C.F. here, was a delegate to the initial C.C.F. convention at Regina in 1933, and a charter member of the Grandview C.C.F. club.

In the last provincial election, he was C.C.F. candidate in Revelstoke, and in 1941 was a member of the party's provincial executive, being elected first vice-president at the annual convention last March.

LONDON (AP) — Maj.-Gen. Carl Spaatz declared Monday night that United States bomber crews, some of whom are being seasoned on daylight raids with the R.A.F. and R.C.A.F., were preparing to "bomb Germany as fast and as often as possible until we win the war."

Russian Drive Sets Foe Back

By EDDY GILMORE

MOSCOW (AP) — Red army troops counter-attacking southwest of Stalingrad were reported today to have thrown the Germans into retreat and reoccupied an important line. The invaders, however, wedged into Don bend defences north of that area and forced two more crossings of the Kuban River in the Krasnodar sector.

Military dispatches said the Russian forces generally improved their positions in the area above Kotelnikovsk, where a German force has been striking up the Stalingrad-Novorossisk rail line toward the Volga.

The counter-attack appeared the strongest Marshal Timoshenko's men had undertaken since the invaders crossed the lower reaches of the Don.

P.G.E. Party Leaves

To Locate Railway Prince George North

VANCOUVER (CP) — Warren G. Magnusson (Dem., Washington) one of a party of Seattle businessmen who left here today to tour the Pacific Great Eastern Railway, said the United States was interested in the road as a connecting link in a projected railway to Alaska and its purchase from the British Columbia government might be "arranged."

"The U.S. army is locating a railway north out of Prince George now," Magnusson said. "There would have to be negotiations, of course, between the United States government and your Dominion government."

Foster L. McGovern, assistant general manager of the Seattle Chamber of Commerce and organizer of the trip, said funds for the purchase of the P.G.E. might be raised privately.

"A lot would depend," he added, "on the price your provincial government asks. The railways in the United States, however, have a lot of heavy commitments on hand at the present."

ASK FOR HART

Members of the party expressed interest in the whereabouts of Premier John Hart, who was to have gone with the Seattle delegation on this trip, but who is in Edmonton with key officials army newspaper Red Star said several invasion firing points were destroyed.

While shock troops occupied a defence section which had been hurriedly erected by the Germans and Rumanians, other Red army forces strengthened their positions guarding the Lower Volga and Stalingrad.

Soviet infantrymen were reported on the steppes southeast of Kletskaia, itself 80 miles northwest of Stalingrad.

In the last 24 hours, the Soviet Information Bureau announced, the Russians repulsed four enemy attacks and killed more than 1,500 Germans.

Soviet artillerymen were said to have wiped out more than five companies (perhaps 1,000 men) of German infantry and destroyed 12 field guns during the last two days of the Don bend battle, where Marshal Fedor von Bock is making his strongest bid for a pathway to Stalingrad, industrial centre on the Volga.

of the railway and the British Columbia Department of Public Works. They speculated his visit might have some bearing on the fate of the railway.

(In Edmonton Mr. Hart was silent as to the purpose of his visit.)

Asked whether the railway now being "located" north of Prince George to Alaska would follow the route which he claimed to have discovered in between the "A" and "B" routes for the proposed Alaska Highway, Magnusson said:

"More or less the same. You must remember the so-called 'A' and 'B' routes are not necessarily separate and distinct; a highway or railroad might follow parts of both, cutting through to Atlin by way of Tekla lake and Stewart lake country."

NEED COASTAL ROUTE

Magnusson said the Alaska Highway now being built out of Fort St. John "must be supplemented by something more substantial."

"It is primarily an auxiliary air road," he said. "A coastal route is necessary and feasible. It will be important not only from a military standpoint but from a commercial standpoint in the future."

Diplomats Held As Submarines Take Big Toll

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — The rising fury of Brazilians over the sinkings by Axis submarines of five Brazilian ships in three days brought President Getulio Vargas himself today to denounce the sinkings as "acts of piracy" in an address to a tumultuous crowd that paraded to the residential palace.

Meanwhile street demonstrations quickly spread war fever as resentment rose.

The Brazilian steamers Bage and Cuyaba, due to take Axis diplomats to Europe were held in port.

Just before noon a crowd tore Brazilian flags from the offices of two pro-Axis newspapers and marched to the foreign ministry, where a spokesman for the demonstrators declared:

PEOPLE WILL FOLLOW

"This demonstration is to show the Brazilian government that people will follow the government anywhere."

A functionary of the foreign ministry accepted the flags, and then the demonstrators, estimated to number 2,000, observed one minute's silence "in memory of all who have died throughout the world in the struggle against aggressors."

Special police prevented damage to the newspaper buildings but there were other cases of attacks on German property by enraged Brazilians.

There was one attempt to attack a suburban German hospital. Demonstrations occurred against various business houses known to be German-controlled.

Dispatches from Porto Alegre told of anti-Axis demonstrations by a huge crowd there.

Strongly-worded editorials in the Brazilian press fanned the public feelings.

836 IMPERILED

It was learned that the five sunken ships carried 836 persons, including 274 soldiers. Government information up to noon showed 157 had reached the Brazilian coast leaving 679 still to be accounted for.

The Journal said the delay in departure of the diplomat exchange ships definitely was connected with the sinkings.

"We have been patient in excess," the newspaper declared. "The count of the missing from the five ships, two of them carrying troops to an undisclosed destination, was still incomplete."

The Diario de Noticias declared Brazil was "neither intimidated nor disposed to forgive the crime."

IMPLIES WEAKNESS

The newspaper added the attacks on shipping off the Brazilian coast actually implied a growing weakness of the Reich. "If these undersea craft devote themselves to attacks on small vessels navigating between Bahia and Recife it is obvious that it is becoming more difficult to sink ships taking supplies to Russia, new materials to the United States, and arms to England."

The government, bitterly criticizing the Axis for "disregard of the most elemental concept of human rights," promised the attacks on Brazilian property and lives would not go unpunished.

CROWDS GATHER

Large crowds gathered at the offices of the Lloyd Brasileiro Navigation Lines to learn the fate of relatives on the ships.

A Brazilian announcement said the Baependy was carrying an army unit "with reduced number of forces," but added that "rumors" dispersed about high military losses have not the slightest foundation.

(The announcement apparently referred to the first word on the sinking, quoting the Brazilian embassy at Montevideo as announcing the loss of the Baependy with 700 or 800 troops.)

The sinkings brought to 18 the number of Brazilian ships sunk by Axis marauders. The attacks began after Brazil broke relations with the Axis Jan. 29, 1942. The government already has taken stern reprisal measures, and ordered partial confiscation of Axis property in Brazil.

U.S. Grand Jury Probes Navy Report

CHICAGO (AP)—J. L. Maloney, managing editor of the Chicago Tribune, appeared at the federal building today to testify before a grand jury investigating publication of allegedly confidential naval information.

Maloney said he was willing to sign an immunity waiver and added:

"I am going to tell the truth. If any one thinks that I gave information to the Japs against my country they're crazy." Maloney served during the last war with Capt. Eddie Rickenbacker's air squadron.

Stanley Johnston, a Tribune war correspondent, arrived with the declaration: "I'm going to tell the same bloody story I told to the admirals in Washington. I signed an immunity waiver there, and I'll sign one here."

Johnston apparently referred to a flying visit to Washington he made late in June to tell his story to naval authorities.

The newspaper story under investigation, an article which estimated the size of the Japanese fleet which sailed on Midway, was based on material gathered by Johnston and was published June 7 in the Tribune, the New York Daily News and the Washington Times Herald.

Johnston and Maloney have explained that Johnston made his estimate of the Jap force from knowledge gained during the battle of the Coral Sea, information contained in Japs' fighting ships, discussions with naval officers and his own study of naval affairs.

War Analyst Puzzled

U.S. Air Fighters Enter Libya Fight

By EDWARD E. BOMAR
Associated Press War Analyst
Cairo's disclosure that American air fighters are ready now to go into action in Egypt in their own squadrons is a hopeful turn in a situation which otherwise is puzzling and discouraging.

The development suggests the arrival of substantial reinforcements and promises further augmentation of Egypt's defenses, in keeping with the crucial importance of North Africa and the entire Middle East.

After months of intensive improvement of the cross-Africa aerial ferry route, it can be hoped that a fast and steady stream of short-range fighter-planes as well as bombers can be kept flowing to Egypt under their own power. Definite information on this point naturally is lacking.

Troops, tanks and bulky supplies for the desert struggle still must move by ships on 14,000-mile, U-boat imperilled, voyages from the United States or Britain.

NO COUNTER-ATTACK

The current Egyptian puzzle is that in the month since Marshal Rommel's army was brought to a halt, Gen. Auchinleck has not seen fit to launch a full-scale attempt to drive the invaders back to the Libyan border and relieve the threat to the Nile.

Discouragement arises from the suspicion that the British commander decided his 8th army was unequal to the task, that now Rommel may be gaining in time for reinforcements, and that when the desert front flames into a new crisis it again will be the invaders who take the offensive.

Hopes were high last month that reinforcements had given the British forces a temporary margin of superiority in men and tanks. They appeared to have retained an edge in the air all along.

In United Nations capitals there was a widespread expectation that Auchinleck would momentarily attack in force. But he did not. There was one formidable tank foray of a day and a half, which was reported to have been more costly in tanks to the attackers than to the foe.

This setback, it may be, accounts for a decision to dig in and engage in a race for reinforcements. But in such a race, unfortunately, the odds of geography are heavily weighted in favor of the Axis.

ROMMEL BUILDING

Despite the continuous aerial lambasting of Nazi and Italian convoys and of Bengasi, Matruh and other North African bases, it must be recognized that Rommel's strength is being built up. Convoys of merchantmen from Sicily and Greece have been badly battered by bombs, but fast motor boats and self-propelled barges are able to slip across the Mediterranean by night and in daytime periods of low visibility.

What Auchinleck is receiving, aside from the new American fighter squadrons, is a military secret which Cairo dispatches can only hint at. The defenders have one primary advantage in that to a limited degree the Middle East fronts are mutually supporting. Some diversions can be risked from Palestine and Syria, and munitions originally destined for India and even Russia may be sidetracked.

Time also permits expansion of American depots to repair and service fighting equipment of all kinds. Malta, replenished at the cost of a British aircraft carrier and cruiser, remains a sharp thorn to the Axis effort, and the British navy is back in action smashing at the ports of origin of the enemy supply line.

In default of detailed information the allied public can only strive to be as hopefully patient over the outlook in Egypt as over the prospects for a second front in Europe.

Troops Overseas Confident, Fit

OTTAWA (CP)—Confidence springing from hard training and a knowledge of their own fitness has given the Canadian army overseas a new appearance, Lt.-Gen. Kenneth Stuart, chief of the general staff, told the Canadian Press Monday night on his return from the United Kingdom.

Having seen the overseas army a year ago and again in his visit of the past few weeks, he said he had noticed a change.

"They have been through the most difficult and trying forms of training," he said. "They have taken the training in their stride and their confidence has increased accordingly. This confidence and the knowledge that they are fit for what may lie ahead of them is expressed in their appearance."

Gen. Stuart spoke of his visits with the Canadian units overseas during an interview after arriving at nearby Uplands airport from Montreal by Trans-Canada Airlines plane.

He said he was particularly impressed with the fitness and youthful appearance of the battalion and equivalent commanders and found their average age was about 32.

"May I say to the Canadian people and in particular to those who have dear ones overseas," he added, "that what I saw of the appearance, bearing and behavior of all ranks of the Canadian army overseas, both on duty and off duty, made me appreciate my privilege of wearing the same uniform and made me very proud of being a Canadian."

Gen. Stuart, senior Canadian army officer in the Dominion, conferred during his overseas trip with Lt.-Gen. A. G. L. McNaghlin, commander-in-chief of the 1st Canadian Corps, and Maj.-Gen. J. P. Montague, senior officer at Canadian military headquarters overseas.

His arrival in the United Kingdom was announced about three weeks ago.

Potato Riots, France

VICHY (AP)—A newspaper in the unoccupied zone reported today that mobs of week-end visitors from as far apart as Lille and Le Havre overwhelped gardens in the potato-growing centre of Villagers-Bretonneux and forced farmers to sell their potatoes under threat of pillaging the farms. Three farmers were fined 5,000 francs each for yielding.

Norse Experience Invasion 'Scare'

LONDON (CP)—Advices reaching the Norwegian government in London today declared German forces in Norway experienced an "invasion scare" when a British convoy was recently sighted off the Trondheim coast.

It was said the Germans occupied the Trondheim telephone exchange and locked the operators in a room where they were held overnight.

Many followers of pro-Nazi Premier Vidkun Quisling removed their party emblems, burned confidential papers and hurriedly left town amid fears of a British attack. The British convoy presumably was en route to northern Russia.

America Watches Moves in India

WASHINGTON (AP)—The United States is watching closely day-to-day developments in India, State Secretary Cordell Hull told his press conference today, and will give all the attention that may be feasible to that situation. Hull withheld comment on London reports that the British economist, Harold Laski, and others were advocating a joint conference of Indian and United Nations leaders, in the hope of formulating a compromise between M. K. Gandhi's demands for "Freedom Now," and Britain's determination to avoid any sudden change which might weaken India's war effort.

He said the proposal had not yet been brought to the attention of the United States.

Canadian Paratroops Start Grind

The first detachment of Canadian troops to begin training for service in the 1st Canadian Parachute Battalion are shown here as they assembled in Ottawa recently before heading south for Fort Benning, Ga. The full complement of six officers and 20 N.C.O.'s, selected from a large number of volunteers at Lansdowne Park, Ottawa, by Major H. D. Proctor of Ottawa, the commander-elect, is as follows: Front row: Lieut. H. K. Robinson, Montreal; Lieut. T. W. R. Brier, St. Johns, Que.; Major R. F. FORT BENNING, GA. (CP)—There'll be no softies in the parachute battalions, either Canadian or American, now in training at the United States parachute school here.

Twenty-seven Canadians—seven officers and 20 men—completed their first day's schooling Monday and, although hot and a little tired after nine hours, they loved it. The newly-arrived Canadians, nucleus of the Dominion's 1st parachute battalion, were put through the paces in "double time."

Ladysmith Boy Tells of Libya

The most disappointed men in the Libyan setback were the aircrews who had been pounding the Axis from their desert air bases. Flt. Sgt. Bill Dow of Ladysmith, B.C., said on his return to Britain recently from the Middle East. He and most of the Canadians out there thought Rommel would have been settled for good this spring.

Flt. Sgt. Dow completed more than 35 trips as a wireless operator-air gunner in a Wellington bomber. On the last trip in which he took part an Axis troop concentration near Benghazi was to be bombed. On the way in they were set upon by night fighters.

Two C42's fired at them and missed in a head on attack, and then a Junkers 88 came at them. With its four cannon and glaring headlights the Junkers is a formidable opponent, but Dow in the British aircraft returned its fire, and pieces were seen flying from the Junkers as it made off.

Shortly afterwards another Junkers passed under them on the port side but apparently did not see the Wellington.

Flt. Sgt. Dow had done some operational flights from England before being moved to the Middle East and he found very little difference in the reception the enemy had prepared for them there.

The Germans had built up their anti-aircraft defences which at first were haphazard, until they were fairly accurate, and their night fighter opposition likewise increased. Sandstorms and organizational difficulties due to distance also had to be overcome.

In his aircraft Flt. Sgt. Lew Cormier of Toronto was the front gunner. Dow also saw Flt. Sgt. Bob Chalmers of Toronto, who one night as second pilot was wounded. Chalmers was recovering well in a base hospital when he last had word of him. In his squadron W.O. 1 George Kusear of Toronto was acting as navigator.

Flt. Sgt. Dow took part in a couple of rescue parties. One day they were sent out to look for another Wellington which had been forced down in the desert. They spotted the crew, who had made a perfect landing.

Repairs and gasoline were provided on the spot but no means was available for starting the Wimpy. So with the engine well primed and the prop turned back by hand they attached a rope to the prop and swung it with that. They then escorted the plane back to base.

On another occasion they located a crew of six in a dinghy and circled until a rescue launch came out.

Flt. Sgt. Dow was a student before he enlisted in the Royal Canadian Air Force and is still

An easy stride isn't included in the curricula. They run from wherever they are to wherever they have to go, no matter how short the distance. Nor does this fetish for speed stop when they've advanced to the last phase of the four-week training program—the jumping from planes. American instructors are scattered all about the field and when American paratroops, some now in advanced training, drop from planes, they don't loaf to the transport trucks. They move fast.

Churchill Satisfied

Britons Believe War Goes Into New Phase

LONDON (CP)—Britons expressed belief today that the Churchill-Stalin talks last week initiated a new phase of the war which would swing the United Nations into a multi-front offensive that could end only in Germany's utter defeat.

Prime Minister Churchill, flown to and from Moscow with British and United States officers in three four-motored Liberator bombers, himself messaged Premier Stalin "I am certain that our contact will play a useful part in furthering our cause."

A Pravda dispatch broadcast by the Moscow radio said the result of the conversations was a "great political defeat for Hitler-Germany."

Official announcements said the decisions concerned the "war against Hitlerite Germany and her associates in Europe"—a phrase specifically omitting Japan.

Secrecy veiled the details, but the Daily Sketch said "the final decision must have been made" on the question of establishment of a second European front in 1942 and suggested this should stop ill-informed agitation on the subject.

ON VICTORY TRAIL

The historic Kremlin conferences, the smooth execution of the first of the promised daylight raids on Nazi-occupied Europe by United States bombers and indications the Solomon Islands offensive is progressing well all helped to show the start of what Britain regards as the victory trail after almost three years of defensive fighting.

Newspapers played up the visit of Mr. Churchill and the comment of the Daily Mail that "nothing but good can come of this conference" was typical.

The BBC, in an English-language broadcast beamed to the millions of men and women dominated by Hitler, said the joint Moscow-London announcement "inaugurates the final phase of the war which will see the decline and end of Germany's offensive power and the swift sequel of an Allied offensive."

"The death throes (of Germany) may be prolonged," it said, "but every possible measure to curtail them was considered in Moscow."

The Times said the meeting "should ensure that any cobwebs which may have hitherto obscured only 21 years old. He took his initial training at Regina, his wireless at Montreal and his gunnery at Jarvis, Ont. Lately he has been on leave while awaiting word of where he is going to be used in the future.

Even the jumping is fast. Eight men leave the plane in 11 seconds.

On graduation from this huge training centre the Canadians will become the instructional staff of the school being set up at Shilo, Man., and it's a cinch that "double time" will be as familiar at drill there as it now is at Fort Benning.

There's a sense of urgency in paratroop training that double time seems to exemplify.

CHINESE REPULSE JAPANESE ATTACK

CHUNGKING (AP)—A determined Japanese attack aimed at closing the gap in the Kiangsi province railway front has been hurled back after thrusting westward 12 miles from Shanghai, a Chinese army spokesman announced today.

The Japanese objective was Hengfeng, 24 miles from Shanghai, he said.

Simultaneously the Japanese drove wedges northwest and southwest from Shanghai to protect their central column from flank attacks, the spokesman reported.

The Japanese recently have transferred 4,000 or 2,000 soldiers from Haiphong to Langson, in French Indo-China near the Kwangsi province border, but this was "a minor activity without any special significance," the spokesman added.

Power in Parley

LONDON (CP)—Reuters news agency quoted the Vichy radio today as saying 200 persons were killed or injured by a bomb explosion during a religious ceremony at Bilbao, Spain.

It said Gen. Jose Varela, Spanish army minister, was present but escaped injury.

Island Miners Still 'Holiday'

NANAIMO, B.C. (CP)—Coal mines of the Canadian Collieries (Dunsmuir) Limited in the Nanaimo and Cumberland areas lay idle today for the second consecutive day as 1,500 miners demanding a wage scale revision prepared for a 2 p.m. meeting to discuss their next step.

The miners stopped work Monday to back up their demands for 30 per cent wage increases. They termed their walkout a "holiday," but coal mine operators, Labor Minister Mitchell and the miners' regional union president, termed it an illegal strike.

About 600 miners are out here and more than 700 at Cumberland. The Cumberland group will have a delegation at today's meeting here which will report back to a mass meeting at Cumberland tonight.

It was reported earlier that the work stoppage would result in a loss of 3,000 tons of coal per day which the mines produce.

The miners are asking for a 30 per cent increase in the basic wage, and contend that this will barely bring them to a level with work in other industries for which miners are fitted. It is reported here that the operators have requested permission from the National War Labor Board to give the men the increase, but that there has not been any response from Ottawa.

Union officials said here the cessation of work was also a protest against federal government action in freezing the labor at the mines, making it impossible for the miners to leave for better-paying jobs.

Britons Escape From Fire Camp

BELFAST, NORTHERN IRELAND (CP)—Nine Britons escaped Monday night from an internment camp at the Curragh, County Kildare, Eire. Three were captured a few hours later.

In June several Canadian and English airmen attempted to escape from Curragh internment Camp, but failed because of weak bolts in the joints of ladders they used to cross barbed wire barricades. When the ladders collapsed, the guards rushed in.

The report of the attempted escape did not include the names of those involved, but listed the following Canadians as known to be at the camp: Flt.-Lt. Grant Fleming, Calgary; P.O. R. G. (Bob) Keefer, Montreal; P.O. Jack Calder, former Canadian Press editor at Toronto, and Sgt. Pilot Paul Webster, Vancouver.

Just follow the grey hair recipe below. You'll get a beautiful professional-looking job at a fraction of the usual cost. Get from your druggist one ounce bay rum, one-fourth ounce glycerine, one box Orlex Compound. Mix in half-pint of water, or druggist will mix for you at small cost. Simply comb into hair as directed. Grey, faded, streaked hair is given a beautiful, soft, lustrous, natural-looking color that will not wash out or rub off. Does not stain the scalp or affect permanents. Try the money-saving Orlex recipe today. You will soon forget you ever had grey hair and will look years younger.

3-Nation Air Raid

U.S. Flying Fortresses Blast Rouen Without Loss

AN AMERICAN BOMBER STATION IN BRITAIN (CP)—Young American flying fortress crews, led by Brig. Gen. Ira C. Eaker and screened by an escort of R.C.A.F. and R.A.F. fighters, "nonchalantly" bombed Rouen in France today in the first all-American bomber blow at the German-held continent. They did not lose a plane.

The high-level precision attack on the ancient capital of Normandy, on the Seine, 87 miles northwest of Paris, "left a great pall of smoke and sand over the railroad yards, Gen. Eaker, chief of the United States air force bomber command, said.

Maj. Gen. Carl Spaatz, commander of the United States army air forces in the European theatre, was awaiting the return of Eaker and his airmen at the field.

"This marks the real start of an ever-increasing American bombing offensive," Spaatz declared.

The attack on the railway yards of the ancient cathedral city was described as successful, all the fortress planes releasing their entire bomb loads on the target.

SHOOT DOWN NAZI

A gunner on one flying fortress shot down an enemy pursuit plane encountered during the flight.

Other escorted fortress craft conducted diversional operations to aid the Rouen attack, and these planes also returned safely.

The Allied pursuit planes also bagged two enemy planes in numerous dogfights, but they suffered the loss of two of their own fighter craft.

To 21-year-old Sgt. Kent L. West of West Blocton, the "belly gunner" in a fortress, fell the honor of shooting down the first Nazi fighter plane for the United States European army.

He was riding in his big ship, named "Birmingham Blitzkrieg," when the German pilot, flying a Fockewulf 190—one of the Nazis' newest warplanes—swooped down.

Several short bursts from Kent's 50-calibre guns ended the menace.

Gen. Eaker termed the Allied fighter escort "splendid protection." The R.A.F. Spitfires actually accompanied the bombers over Rouen, while the American fighter planes participated in diversionary flights.

PRAISES CREWS

Stepping out of the flying fortress "Yankee Doodle," Eaker praised his youthful crews, saying that they had carried out their missions "nonchalantly and coolly."

"I watched the bombs drop through the open bays," the general said. "Then I grabbed the oxygen bottle and went back to the waist of the ship and looked out and saw bombs drop right at the heart of the target."

The bomber chief said that bright sunlight outlined the target, and the fortress made only one run, keeping formation from the time they left the field to their return several hours later.

Gen. Spaatz and his staff, accompanied by a group of R.A.F. officers, stood in the control tower here as the sun was setting. They watched anxiously for the return of the big American birds. Down on the field the ground crews also awaited the same sight.

Then, three by three, the first black specks appeared in the sky. The groups standing on the field silently counted the images. As it became apparent all were sailing back to their nests the ground crews broke into loud cheers.

Eaker said he saw three FW 190s shooting at a plane on his right, but said "They stayed a long way off and their tracers went wide."

Lieut. Harry Nuessel, 25, of Lansdowne, Pa., a navigator, who was in one of the last formations which encountered most of the opposition, declared:

"They didn't seem to like our 50-calibre guns. The FW 190s stayed well away and shot from a distance. Our bombs hit right on the nose."

Sgt. West said:

"Just after leaving the target, an FW 190 started to climb up on us from underneath. I got him in my sights and gave him a burst of 20 rounds at about 800 feet. He went down smoking."

Other crewmen said they saw the Nazi fighter falling out of control.

Bombardier 2nd Lieut. George Ludolph, 27, St. Paul, Minn., declared:

"We laid 'em right on the locomotive sheds, blew them sky high."

FLIER WANTS MORE

"Youngest man on the flight was Sgt. Frank Christensen, 18, Racine, Wis. He said:

"If they were all as easy as this, I'd like to go back tomorrow."

Even as intelligence officers interviewed the returning pilots, ground crews busied themselves about the dark grey fortresses in the twilight, servicing them for a new flight.

Spaatz's parting words as he left this advanced bomber base by plane for his headquarters were:

"Now we've started, we'll keep it up as often as possible."

Rouen is an important Nazi-operated inland port. The capital of the Seine-Inférieure department, it has a population of approximately 115,000. It is a communications hub for north-western France, both because of its railway links, and because the Seine River is tidal up to that point.

This city is an important manufacturing centre with machine, chemical and cloth factories.

Monday night squadrons of Hurricane bomber fighters crossed the Straits of Dover headed for the Dunkerque, Calais and Boulogne areas in unrelenting aerial stabs at the German-held "invasion coast." Shortly afterwards the rumble of explosions was heard on the English side of the Channel.

Sees Canadian World Unity

LAKE COUCHICHING, Ont. (CP)—To attain an all-out war effort, Canadians must look beyond "the classical lines of racial rivalries and prejudices into a brave new world of Canadian and human brotherhood," Edmond Turcotte, editor of Montreal le Canada, said in a speech Monday night to the Canadian Institute on Public Affairs.

"The world struggle in which we are now engaged is not a war of governments or a war of nations," he said. "It is a war of ideas, a war of class liberation, a revolutionary war."

"Not until we all understand this in Canada shall we have the psychological conditions required for a truly maximum war effort."

Such conditions would not exist in Canada, Mr. Turcotte said, "so long as English Canadians stalk the land with the self-assurance of a people sincerely convinced of a divine right of leadership, and so long as French Canadians continue to sulk in the corner, nursing real or imaginary wounds to their morbidly sensitive racial ego."

CLASS DIFFERENCES

The problem confronting Canadian unity "is not one merely of racial misunderstanding, but even more deeply so one of racial differences complicated by a class struggle of the modern machine age—the English representing the owner class and the French the proletarian and the dispossessed."

Mr. Turcotte said that there is a sentiment, widely prevalent in French Canada, that French Canadians "are consciously or subconsciously relegated by English Canadians to the status of second class citizenship in every field of employment, public or private endeavor in Canada wherever it is possible to do so without running into head-on collision."

NO UNEMPLOYMENT IN B.C., SAYS HART

EDMONTON (CP)—There is practically no unemployment in British Columbia, and war industry is working to capacity with a minimum of labor, wages and working conditions problems, Premier John Hart of British Columbia stated in an interview on his arrival here Monday night for a three-day visit.

Mr. Hart is accompanied by Arthur Dixon, British Columbia provincial chief engineer; F. C. Green, surveyor-general for the province, and D. C. Lewis, assistant chief engineer to the Pacific Great Eastern Railway.

Questioned regarding his mission here, Premier Hart said he had no statement to make at present.

Asked if the Blue River highway would be completed, he said that was a matter for the Minister of Public Works, and declined to make any comment.

He declined also to comment on the Japanese situation in British Columbia, but added that a probable solution to some of the difficulties might be found through the employing of individual families on farms.

Premier Hart said there were no unemployed in British Columbia, although there were some indigents whom the government provided for in conjunction with the municipalities. He added that the farm labor problem had been met this year by releasing high school children from school one month earlier than usual to enable them to assist in berry picking and other provincial harvesting activities.

Dive-Bomber Trap Shown in New York

NEW YORK (AP)—A dive-bomber trap operating on the theory that a plunging attack plane can't skip steel ropes hurled by morians, was among military mechanisms in a "win the war" exhibition opened here today in a department store.

The U.S. Coastguard displayed a model of the trap which is aimed to protect a prepared position menaced by a dive-bomber. A mortar cannon hurls into the air a long cable which stretches out to fall slowly, supported by two parachutes. Its object is to foul the enemy plane or force it to swerve from its target.

Exhibit lecturers said that the device "has ended the effectiveness of dive-bombing prepared positions."

A total of 60 United Nations governments, defence agencies and private organizations are sponsoring the displays, open until Aug. 19.

CONSTRUCTIVE CRITICISM

In August 13 issue you said on editorial page under "Time for Fair Play": "And is the supply of constructive criticism completely exhausted?"

Certainly not, Mr. Editor. If you will take the trouble to look up the speeches of the C.C.F. members in Hansard, or delve into "News Comment," the half-monthly publication of the C.C.F. national office, or look over the "Statement," issued by the C.C.F. National Convention at Toronto, July 27, 28, 29 last, you will find lots of "constructive criticism" of the Mackenzie King government's way of running this war and of its lack of preparations for a lasting peace; in fact, you will find nothing else than just that!

'SERMON BY A SPIDER'

An article with above heading, and taken from the Vancouver Province, appeared on page four of your issue, Aug. 8. Some of your readers were, no doubt, considerably impressed, one way or another. That was my own experience.

The sermonizer (he did not sign) refers to the "processes of creation going on for aeons upon aeons of time, and continuing to go on for endless aeons of time."

He implies that everything has been created—from what?—and that the process of creation shall continue forever. What would science have to say about that?

If true, it means that more substance—from whence?—is being continually added to the universe. Would not this upset all our scientific calculations?

Equally absurd is the inference that that which is endless could possibly have a beginning; if so, where is half-way?

Now for the spider-web angle of the sermon which caused the expounder "for the first time in 20 years" to kneel by his bedside in prayer. The source of his inspiration was not only the mathematical precision and delicate construction of said fly-trap, but the way in which the "Supreme Intelligence" watched over the spider while it waited for the "food that surely comes."

I ask: Is not the spider, along with the adder and the shark, a part of that nature which is "red in claw and fang?" If so, how strange to think of one's reverence receiving prayerful inspiration from such a source!

THANKS FROM RED CROSS

May I, on behalf of the Victoria and District Branch of the Canadian Red Cross, thank the many thousands of Victorians who, by buying tickets in the different contests and attending the Grand Garden Gala at Government House last Wednesday, made the event such an outstanding success in every way?

The many workers are, so far as possible, being thanked individually, but of course it is quite impossible to do this with regard to the people of Victoria generally.

The Gala was held to obtain funds for the Canadian Red Cross and everyone who supported it helped the Red Cross in its great work.

Yours sincerely,

URGES NEW FRONT AGAINST JAPAN

SYDNEY, Australia (CP)—

Opening of an eastern front against Japan should have precedence over new front in west, Sir Earle Page, Australian representative in the British war cabinet, said Monday night.

In a broadcast to the Australian people, he urged that Russia be aided to the greatest possible extent with tanks, planes and other equipment but that United Nations devote their main efforts to a new front in the Pacific.

He said an offensive from Australia would aid Russia "equally as much as China and would prevent the Japanese from stabbing Russia's back."

IN Britain they have to get along on 51 clothing coupons a year. Of these, a woman's woollen dress takes 11, a man's suit 26, his pyjamas 8, shirts 5, leather gloves 2. Everything is rationed even handkerchiefs. But in Britain they would rather be free than fashionable, safe than smart. Wouldn't you? Before you buy anything new, ask yourself if that money isn't more needed for weapons and warriors to keep your home safe from Nazis and Japs. By going without — by making what you have last longer — you can buy War Savings Stamps and Certificates. That, today, is every woman's war job... and your country will pay you back $5.00 for every $4.00 you lend. For your own sake, your family's sake, your country's sake, buy War Savings Stamps every day, every week.

Home Front Reinforcements

NOW THAT MR. CHURCHILL AND MR. Stalin have had long heart-to-heart talks about the war in general—including, no doubt, the possibility of diverting some of the Wehrmacht's strength from the Russo-German battlefield—how would it be if those sincere and well-meaning persons who have been devoting much time and energy to the "second front" argument were to apply their persuasive eloquence to the building up of the Canadian War Savings Certificates and Stamps front? To be sure, all the peoples of the United Nations would welcome with joy any new difficulty that can be provided for the Axis; and they are ready for the sacrifices which a bold adventure would necessarily entail. This does not alter the fact that strategic and military considerations only will determine any diversionary tactics that may sooner or later expand the offensive campaign of the democratic coalition. On the other hand, if Canadians are genuinely behind the grand objective to which the British Prime Minister and the head of the Soviet Union devoted their attention in Moscow last week, and we know they are, they can take to heart what Mr. Isley said in his vitally-important radio chat to the nation on Sunday. It bears repeating here:

"There is no easy way to win this war; there is no easy way to pay for it."

No technical knowledge is required to promote greater interest in the business upon which Canada's wartime financing must largely depend if the nation's economy is to withstand the increasing stresses and strains that will be made upon it before the conflict ends. We admit that it is a simple matter to take the platform and argue about the "second front" because the subject lends itself admirably to the employment of glittering and plausible generalities. But, to paraphrase the homely adage, high-sounding phrases "butter no parsnips." Mr. Churchill and Mr. Stalin know what the layman does not, and cannot, know about contemplated military plans. The layman does know, or he should know, that by making the purchase of War Savings Certificates and Stamps an integral part of his personal economy every week, he is strengthening a front that already is established, but which is daily in need of large "reinforcements" to hold it against the sinister enemy of inflation.

Eaker's 'Big Fellows'

TWENTY-ONE DAYS HAVE ELAPSED since Air Chief Marshal Sir Arthur Harris warned the German people that the men of the Bomber Command intended to "scourge the Reich from end to end." He added that "in comparison with what it will be like" when "we and the Americans" do the job together, "all that has happened so far will seem very little." This was aptly described as "talking tough." Osnabrueck, Mainz, and other important cities of the Reich have since been treated to rough handling by the R.A.F.

Yesterday, however, the chief of the United States Bomber Command in Britain, General Ira Eaker, personally led his Flying Fortresses in a raid over France and returned without casualty. And Sir Arthur Harris this morning sent his congratulations on the "highly-successful completion of the first all-American raid by the big fellows on German-occupied territory in Europe." The Air Chief Marshal neatly uses an American colloquialism: They "certainly went to town."

Perhaps General Eaker's little trip over French territory was in the nature of an experimental flight; but the fact that all his ships returned to their bases only after depositing their bombs should indicate to the people of the Reich perfection in American organization. Reichsmarshal Goering will have his work cut out to explain the presence of Americans messing up German air—the same air he promised the German people would never be disturbed by the R.A.F.

Far From Knockout

EVEN IF THE NAZIS OVERRUN ALL the Caucasus region, Russia will be far from being knocked out and will be able to stay in the ring as a powerful contender, according to a new Penguin book, "How Russia Prepared." It is by Maurice Edelman, a British subject who has spent much time in Russian travel for British commercial firms.

In overrunning the Ukraine and partly paralyzing the production centres around Leningrad, the German hordes have put only about one-fourth of Russian industrial capacity out of action, Mr. Edelman estimates. He says that 30 per cent of the Soviet industrial strength lies in the Moscow region, still behind the Red defence lines, and the other 70 per cent is far to the east of the war. It is concentrated mainly in two great groups of new factory cities. One is in the Magnitogorsk-Sverdlovsk area in the Southern Urals, the other is grouped around Novosibirsk on the headwaters of the Irtysh, Ob and Yenisei rivers, near the borders of Outer Mongolia.

Planned by Joseph Stalin, in anticipation of treachery and aggression from the West, these two regions and other minor industrial areas, were built during a dozen years before the Nazi attack. Building of these new Pittsburghs and Detroit was not an exclusively Russian affair. German, English and United States engineers and industrialists had a hand, Mr. Edelman says. Names such as Ford, du Pont and Curtiss appear among the contributors to their rise.

A year ago when the Nazi armies were breaking into the Russian West, withdrawal of much of the Ukrainian equipment was made "according to plan." Machine bases were not embedded in concrete; they were merely bolted down with quickly unscrewable nuts so they could be promptly removed and loaded on waiting trucks and flatcars. New buildings were waiting for them in the Urals. Stalin called them "leap-frog" factories and in many cases the machines bore numbers indicating spots assigned to them in their new locations.

Least optimistic of Mr. Edelman's optimistic picture of Soviet preparedness concerns oil. Russian geologists and oil operators have been at work locating new sources to the north and east of the destroyed and threatened oil regions between the Black and Caspian seas. However, the best that can be claimed for these new sources is that they might yield about one-sixth as much as the great petroleum areas around Maikop and Baku.

A Payroll Island

ONE REASON FOR THE NEW FACES, the larger crowds on Victoria streets, in shops, and at gatherings, is to be found in the latest annual report of the British Columbia Department of Labor. This shows the 1941 payroll on Vancouver Island at $48,863,459, an increase of just over $10,000,000 from the year before and $17,000,000 more than that of four years ago.

As the payroll total is not reported for each community separately, figures are not available for the Victoria area alone. But as the bulk of the population and most of the larger industries are located in the southern part of the island, it may be assumed that the bulk of the workers' earnings are spread over the same area.

In this area Victoria and the adjoining three municipalities constitute the chief centre of population, but the district for 50 to 70 miles outside of Victoria is tributary to Victoria as a result of good roads and other facilities. In this district are to be found at least two of the largest lumber mills in the province, extensive timber and fishing operations, and such substantial industries as the cement works at Bamberton and the chemical and explosives works on James Island. To the list of such industries, which were well established before the war, there have since been added the shipyards, which according to the labor department's report, show the greatest percentage increase in payrolls.

The last census placed the population of this island at 148,436, not including, of course, all the army, navy and air force personnel. An industrial payroll of $48,863,459 a year on such a population basis represents a high average of industrialization which, no doubt, would be surprising to persons in the east accustomed to thinking of this as a lotus isle.

They Know de Gaulle Now

AFTER THE PEOPLES OF THE ALLIED world had digested the manifesto of the Fighting French, which General Charles de Gaulle issued last June 24, they knew that the man who is working night and day for the liberation of his beloved France is not only a democrat by conviction and practice but also the living inspiration for millions of his compatriots now existing under the Nazi yoke. Moreover, it is encouraging to detect in advice reaching us that the skeptics in Britain and the United States are substantially changing their tune. At long last, certain former antipathetic elements seem to be convinced of his sincerity, that he possesses not a scintilla of political ambition, and that any form of dictatorship is as detestable to him as to the most rabid anti-totalitarian disciple of the Allied cause.

There may be good and sufficient reason for British and American hesitancy to cut the last remaining diplomatic tie with what masquerades for government at Vichy. That would be achieved, of course, in the recognition by London and Washington of the National Committee of the Fighting French over which General de Gaulle presides. This is another instance of behind-the-scenes political strategy on which the public can only speculate. It is reasonable to assume, too, that General de Gaulle understands and appreciates the difficulties inherent in the present complicated circumstances. His manifesto, however, if it has done nothing else, has proved to all the United Nations that his leadership-in-exile of the French people will win him that full recognition immediately the liberation of France begins in earnest. His magnificent work cannot fail of its due reward.

Notes

Reinforcements for the Canadian War Savings Certificates and Stamps front are now urgently needed. This is a job for every Canadian.

That banquet in Moscow at which the courses defied the toasts by 26 to 25 must have been an eloquent gastronomic battle supreme.

The Herr Doktor Goebbels will have a job trying to explain to the German people what Churchill said to Stalin and what Stalin said to Churchill.

Bruce Hutchison

TO THE BANKS

MR. ISLEY has gone to the banks. This may not strike you as important for you often go to the banks yourself. But when Mr. Isley goes to the bank it is time to begin worrying. It is a sign of certain serious prospects affecting the whole people of North America.

Mr. Isley is borrowing from the banks. He gives them the government's promise to repay and the banks thereupon create new money and hand it over to Mr. Isley. It is quite simple. The banks can always create money that way and many men, just discovering the ease of it, have imagined that it is a solution to all problems; have insisted that the only thing standing between us and prosperity is the willingness of the banks to write certain figures in a ledger; that the true barrier to progress is a dry fountain pen.

Actually when Mr. Isley creates new money at the banks he does not create any new goods. The amount of food, housing, fuel and luxuries you can get in Canada is not in the least increased. There is no more cordwood in Victoria because Mr. Isley has gone to the banks and got more money. So that, in fact, Mr. Isley has resorted to inflation pure and simple. But do not be too alarmed. He is not resorting to it on a scale sufficiently large yet to affect the price of goods. He is not creating enough new money to do any harm—yet. He is merely financing himself until he can borrow money from you in the next Victory Loan in the autumn—until he can compel you, in fact, to reduce your consumption of goods so that more of our energy may go into weapons.

NEVERTHELESS Mr. Isley's pilgrimage to the banks is a dread warning. It means simply that we are not yet on top of the financial problem of this war and that if it gets on top of us in the end we shall all be ruined. But how do you get that idea over to the public? How do you persuade them that we are in desperate trouble?

No one has succeeded yet. For all their speeches and dark warnings the statesmen have failed. Now Mr. Elmer Davis, the newly-appointed information boss of the United States, is trying his hand. He is trying to talk to the people not in economic or military terms but in simple, human terms that they will understand. He tells them in his first public statement that they are only "ankle-deep" in the war, that they have survived so far thanks to their Allies and finally that they can lose the war.

BUCKING THE TIDE

THAT IS THE THING Mr. Davis will have trouble in getting over to the public—the fact that we may lose the war. Here he has to buck a mighty tide of propaganda which was unleashed two years ago to persuade America of the opposite fact—that the war could be won. In 1940 that was the necessity to persuade America that the war could be won and was worth spending some cash on. The propaganda succeeded so well that America swung around to the opposite extreme and, by last spring, was quite confident that the war not only could be won but was being won rapidly.

Now it will take months to persuade the American people that the war can be lost and they can be ruined. Such an idea is repugnant to all North Americans. The notion of defeat never enters our heads because we have never known it. No foreign enemy has touched our shores since the capture of Cornwallis at Yorktown and Cornwallis was not really a foreigner after all.

There is every evidence to show that the danger of defeat, of ruin, has not captured the public mind of this Continent even today. One could easily cite a few symptoms. Mr. Howe says that civilian pleasure travel on Canadian railways is increasing so much that it must be curtailed by regulations. All over the Continent people are burning up precious rubber for pleasure purposes even though they cannot replace it and 1,000,000 cars a month must leave the roads from now on as their tires wear out. Sales of goods are still higher than they were a year ago. The United States has been unable to master the problem of inflation, has been unable to get on top of prices because people insist on buying more goods with their war wages.

And I think the most interesting exhibit of all is that presented by The Christian Science Monitor which discovered a roadside gambling resort in the desert of Nevada, where hundreds of people flock every night, burning up gasoline and rubber and spending their money in games of chance; and outside this establishment is a patriotic sign which reads: "Demand a Second Front Now."

The home front is the truly dangerous front today, since in the end all others depend upon it. While the statesmen have labored prodigiously on all other fronts this vital sector they have largely overlooked, especially in Canada. They have never set up the machinery of information which can burn the facts of our present danger into the public mind so that they will stick. It is getting pretty late.

While the government is making a search for new taxes, we're still looking for the old ones.

The average man expects his wife to have more sense than she showed by marrying him.

SIDE GLANCES

"She thinks she's the best plane spotter around here, but she wouldn't last five minutes if she didn't bring that kid of hers along to identify them!"

'It Is I, Gen. de Gaulle'

Harold Nicholson, M.P., in London Spectator, Aug. 14 (Cabled). General de Gaulle embodies the spirit of France, his military qualities and supreme moral courage are undisputed.

Yet we were perplexed at first and hesitant; it has taken us two years to understand de Gaulle. We see today that had he remained an officer commanding French volunteers his representative functions would have been diminished. We regretted that he should be so difficult and unaccommodating, so authoritative; we see today that unless he had asserted himself in season and out of season he would have become no more than a foreign officer in the pay of the British treasury.

We distrusted those by whom he was surrounded at first and disliked the methods which on occasions they pursued. We realize now that he was bound to improvise his National Committee and that today it is composed of men whom all can respect. We were hurt by the emphasis which he placed upon his own independence, attributing his criticism of our methods to some dislike of English ways; we see now that his determination to remain

ADDING TO PRINTERS' LIVES

From Typographical Journal

According to the records of the New York Typographical Society, an incorporated sick benefit association which began in business in New York City in 1818, printers in 1850 worked 12 hours per day and their average age at death was 28 years. In 1850, New York Typographical Union was founded with Horace Greeley as its first president. The union cut the working hours to 11 and by 1868 printers were dying at the average age of 35.

By 1883 the working hours had been reduced to 10 and printers were living to the ripe old age of 38.78 years.

In 1905, after nearly six years of the nine-hour day, the secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union reported death benefits had been paid that year for 567 members who died at the average age of 46.48 years.

In 1920, after 14 years of the eight-hour day which became effective in 1906, the average age at death of union printers was 53.17 years.

In 1932, after 11 years of the 44-hour week, the average age at death was 61.10 years.

In 1942, after nearly 10 years of the 40-hour week, the average age at death was 64.87 years.

The boy of 1850 started to learn the printing trade at 14 years of age and died at 28. At 12 hours per day he gave 50,400 hours of labor to his employer—and then he died. The boy of 1942 starts his trade at 16 and may look forward to giving 49 years of production before he dies at 65. At 40 hours per week, with two weeks' vacation with pay, the employer gets 98,000 hours of labor. In cutting the hours from 72 to 40 hours per week, the printer has gained 37 years of life for himself. Society has gained an increase of 47,600 hours of production from each of 80,000 union printers.

WAR—25 YEARS AGO TODAY

Aug. 18, 1917—Canadians repulsed three determined counter-attacks, and inflicted great losses northwest of Lens. French began advance between Oise and Aisne rivers capturing Morsain. Austrians drove Russo-Rumanians from entrenched positions south of Grozesni.

Rice, Headache for Japs

Rice, a great deal too much of it, offers the "makin'" of a new economic headache to Japan, as a result of the conquest of the world's principal rice-producing areas in Indo-China, Burma and Thailand. These countries together grow nine billion pounds of rice a year; the import requirements of all the lands now under Japanese domination are less than four billion. What to do with the rest of it?

Japan, once a great rice-importing nation, has become practically self-sustaining when imports from her colonies, Formosa and Korea, are counted in, explains Fred J. Rossiter in the Far Eastern Survey. Other lands overrun recently by the Japs are on the same status or nearly so, with the exception of British Malaya, which has been a major rice-importing area.

The big rice-consuming countries that formerly imported heavily from the great rice-raising region were India and Ceylon (4.5 billion pounds), Europe (2.5 billion), the rest of the world, altogether, something over a billion pounds a year. All this market is now lost as long as the Japs hold the region.

The peoples of the great rice peninsula are going to be as badly up against it as the wheat farmers of Kansas and the Dakotas were during the worst of the depression, when they could not sell their crops for money to buy overalls and shoes. These Malays are cash-crop farmers, and now they can't get any cash, except the worthless printing-press stuff the Japs may design to pay for part of their crop.

Rice can't even be stored with any great success, in that hot, humid region. Probably the greater part of the crop will rot in the bins. What the brown-skinned farmers will do next crop season is another question. Japan is certainly not going to set up any farm-relief program for their benefit.

ARMY DEMOCRACY

From Walter Winchell

Personal cheques cannot be cashed in the army without the company commander's okay. . . . When Paul, the son of the late financier, Andrew Mellon, went to the C.O. at Fort Riley to get approval for a $100 cheque, the C.O. said: "This is a pretty big cheque for a private to write. How do I know it is good?" . . . "It oughta be," said Paul, "I own the controlling interest in the bank."

BLAKE'S LUNCHING WITH THE BOSS—WHY WASN'T I ASKED?

You have to perspire — You don't have to offend!

In the long run, success largely depends on personal contacts—the impression you make on others you work with. And nothing can be such a jinx as "B.O."

"B.O." is no respecter of persons. We all perspire . . . as regularly as we breathe. When perspiration deposits accumulate on your skin, they soon become offensive. "B.O." results. Ordinary bathing won't do the trick. To be really safe, you must use Lifebuoy—it's the ONE soap especially made to PREVENT "B.O." No other popular soap contains Lifebuoy's special deodorizing ingredient that makes you sure of lasting all-over freshness.

There's nothing like a Lifebuoy bath for making you feel refreshed and peppy FAST! You'll go for that rich, thick, ZIPPY lather in a big way. It makes you SURE of all-day protection. Lifebuoy's fine for face and hands, too. It's 20% milder than many so-called "beauty" and "baby" soaps.

Weddings

KENT-OCKENDEN

Fairfield United Church was beautifully decorated with gladioli in pastel shades and other late summer blossoms for the wedding Monday evening of Fay, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. Ockenden, 1240 Bewdley Avenue, Esquimalt, and Mr. Douglas Kent, second son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Kent, 145 Olive Street.

Rev. W. J. Sipprell, D.D., performed the ceremony, and Miss Phyllis Dilworth, of Vancouver, was at the organ. In place of the traditional white, the bride chose a floor-length gown of pink sheer, with silk braiding outlining the high neckline and front of the bodice, which was finished with a shirred waist and short sleeves. Her chapel veil of matching net was arranged beneath a Mary Stuart headpiece, and Shirley Temple gladioli and Johanna Hill roses composed her arm bouquet.

Mr. Ockenden gave his daughter in marriage, and her bridesmaids were Miss Violet Ockenden, in a floor-length frock of yellow sheer with a mauve flower-trimmed net hat; and Miss Brenda Kent, in a similar frock of mauve sheer with a yellow net hat. Both carried Colonial bouquets of Tallinn roses, mauve and pink gladioli and asters. The best man was Mr. Gilbert Yard, and acting as ushers were Messrs. Arthur and Ian Sherwin.

After the service about 100 guests were welcomed at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Sherwin, 23 Paddon Avenue. Mrs. Ockenden, mother of the bride, received the guests in a dusty rose ensemble with white accessories and a corsage bouquet of Sweetheart roses and carnations, by Mrs. J. Kent, who wore a powder blue redingote with white accessories and a corsage bouquet of pale pink carnations and swainsons.

Flowers and trailing greenery were arranged throughout the reception rooms. The wedding cake centred the bride's table, and supper was served in the dining room at a table centred with a blue bowl of yellow tapers in blue crystal candleabra.

For the honeymoon on the mainland, the bride left in a blue tweed coat over a peach dress with a smart black tam and black accessories. Mr. and Mrs. Kent will make their home at 493 Quebec Street. Out-of-town guests included Mrs. J. Stevenson, Mrs. D. Carlson, Mrs. J. Dilworth, Miss Phyllis Dilworth and Mr. Ira Dilworth, all of Vancouver; Mr. V. Prior, Jordan River; Mr. and Mrs. C. Prior and Miss Prior, Cobble Hill; Mr. and Mrs. C. Hornsby, Savory Island; and Mr. and Mrs. W. Fyfe, Banff.

Rural Women Ask
For More Sugar

EDMONTON (CP) — Women living in rural districts across the Dominion maintain they should be allowed more sugar per person than those living in the city, and "this is one of the greatest problems" the consumers' branch of the Wartime Prices and Trade Board has to deal with, Miss Byrne Sanders of Ottawa, director of the consumers' branch, said in an interview here Monday.

Miss Sanders inspected the regional office of the board in Edmonton, and held a meeting with members of the Women's Regional Advisory Committee in Edmonton. She traveled by plane to Calgary last night.

BUTTER SCARCE

Butter is becoming scarce in the Dominion, and it probably will be rationed before long, Miss Sanders stated. She added that rumored clothes rationing is not true. There is no immediate danger of clothes being rationed.

She also stated that the board at Ottawa is checking up the "honor system" regarding sugar. Honor purchases are being checked, and inspectors will be sent around to check on persons who have received large amounts of sugar for jam-making, or putting up preserves.

Asked about the present alleged "meat shortage," Miss Sanders said there is no shortage of meat in the Dominion, and the board had the situation well under control.

The Women's Auxiliary to the 11th Fortress Signal Coy. will hold a social meeting Wednesday at the home of Mrs. E. J. Hadfield, 2680 Cadboro Bay Road at 2.30 p.m.

When she returned to England, where she attended college in Bristol, taking courses in architecture and interior decorating. She did considerable amount of interior decorating in Victoria. Her hobby is sailing.

L.A.C. ALLAN P. SMITH

Mr. and Mrs. John William Harrison, East Saanich Rd., Royal Oak, announce the engagement of their youngest daughter, Doreen Edna, to L.A.C. Allan Perry Smith, R.C.A.F., eldest son of Mr. and Mrs. T. H. Smith, Galt, Ontario. The wedding will take place at Wilkenson Road United Church, Sept. 1 at 8 p.m.

MISS D. E. HARRISON

Social and Personal

Miss Adela Milward, Edmonton, is spending a vacation at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Milward, The Bend, Langford Lake.

Mrs. H. Calwell and daughter, Miss Leona Calwell of 1329 Franklin Terrace, left yesterday to spend a week in Vancouver and will be guests at the Georgia Hotel.

Master Peter Bishop, Seattle, arrived Sunday to visit his aunt and uncle, Mr. and Mrs. H. W. McKenzie, at Langford for 10 days, while his grandmother, mother and sister fly to California for a short vacation.

Mrs. Kenneth W. Trigrance entertained at a small luncheon party at The Nutshell today in compliment to Miss Zeta Clark, who is to be married shortly. Other guests included Mrs. Arthur D. Morris, Miss Valerie Kearton and Miss Valentine Harlock.

Miss Donnie Clay left this afternoon for Pender Island, after visiting her sisters, Miss Madeleine Clay and Mrs. M. Ormond, Southgate Street. Miss Clay is assistant commandant of the Alberta division of the Women's Service Corps.

Miss Edith Cross, whose marriage to Mr. Alfred Victor Peatt will take place Friday, was presented with a blue Kenwood blanket by Mr. L. Cumming, head of the credit department of the B.C. Electric Company, on behalf of the Office Employees' Association. The presentation was made Friday evening.

A presentation of a flat case of silver from her associates in the office of the Provincial Public Works Department, Burnside Road, was made Saturday night by Mr. H. M. Bigwood, assistant district engineer, to Miss Dorothy Warnock, who will leave at the end of the month for the east where her marriage to Flying Officer Robert Eric Gordon will take place.

Mr. and Mrs. George C. Clark entertained at an after-five party this afternoon at their home in The Athlone, the bridal attendants who will take part in the wedding tomorrow afternoon of their daughter, Zeta, to Flying Officer John Thomas van Houten, R.C.A.F., of Portland, Ore. Flying Officer Harold Rhodes, who is to be best man, has arrived from Prince Rupert with Mrs. Rhodes and they are guests at the Empress Hotel.

Mrs. J. H. Allison and Miss Mary Smith were joint hostesses at the home of the latter, 1317 Arm Street, Sunday afternoon, in honor of Miss Irene A. White, whose marriage to Mr. Colin Campbell will take place this week. The affair took the form of a cocktail party and was held in the garden under a canopy and large umbrellas. A presentation of a dinner set was made to the bride-to-be on behalf of her associates in the Parliament Buildings and was presented by Miss White's nephew, Gary Reynolds.

Former residents of Victoria, Mr. and Mrs. Loren L. Brown of Montreal, announce the engagement of their only daughter, Rosemary Helen, to Dr. John Carlin Haley of Mount Carmel, Conn., son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Pratt Haley. The marriage has been arranged to take place shortly. Miss Brown received her degree of B.Sc. from McGill, class '41, and Dr. Haley is a graduate of the Yale Medical School, and was on the house staff of the Montreal General Hospital for the past year. The bride-to-be is a niece of Mrs. H. V. Mills, Moss Street.

The Misses Daisy and Alice White, South Turner Street who have been spending a week's holiday on the mainland have returned home.

Mrs. Christopher Usher, Victoria, was in Halifax last week for a few days. She was the luncheon guest of Mrs. Gordon D. Campbell before leaving Sunday for Saint John.

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Bingham of Vancouver, who have been visiting Mr. and Mrs. Charles Ferguson, Burdett Avenue, at their summer home at Cgdova Bay, have returned home.

Lieut. and Mrs. P. Russell, formerly of Victoria, are enjoying a two-weeks' vacation in Toronto, where they went for the marriage of Lieut. Russell's sister, Miss Sheila Russell to Lieutenant Michael Stirling.

Miss Ruth Gardiner, who is leaving next month to take a position with the British Purchasing Commission in Washington, D.C., was honored by the members of her mother's bridge club at the home of the latter, Mrs. Margaret Gardiner, 1124 View Street. Bridge was played during the evening, and a dainty gift was presented to the guest of honor. Those present included: Mesdames F. B. Shaver, I. Fleming, J. Kerr, J. McLeod, Alice Gonnason, E. Cave, Rhoda Ozard, Jenny Pollard and Miss Alyce Brown.

Mrs. M. Renwick and members of the Canadian Auxiliary Territorial Service were hostesses to 21 Cadets from Gordon Head Camp on Sunday at Mrs. Renwick's home, 39 George Road, West. After enjoying swimming, canoeing, and tennis, the guests were entertained at a buffet supper, served on the lawn at individual tables, the lawn being decorated with flags and gay garden umbrellas. A musical evening rounded out a delightful gathering.

Miss Irene Hull, whose marriage to Mr. Frank Doyle will take place this week, was honored Saturday evening by a kitchen shower given by Mrs. A. R. Hull, and Miss Lillian Rowland, at the home of the former. The bride-to-be received a corsage bouquet of red roses, and Mrs. A. E. Hull and Mrs. Doyle each received bouquets of pink roses. The useful gifts were concealed under a load of hay in a decorated wagon, drawn into the room by little Diana Hull, and the room was arranged with pink and white streamers. Other guests included Mesdames A. Harris, J. Dickson, J. Gillie, Mellor, King, C. Brown, A. Longland, F. Sharples and Misses Mirth and Joy Doyle, Fairy Mellor and Sophie Dickson.

Miss Eugenie Doherty, Weald Road, entertained Friday evening in honor of Miss Irene White, whose marriage will take place shortly, the affair taking the form of a kitchen shower. The guest of honor was presented with a corsage bouquet of white gladioli and white heather, and the gifts were placed beneath a watering-can decorated in blue paper. The supper table was arranged with white gladioli and chrysanthemums. The guests included Mesdames W. White Sr., R. V. Campbell, F. T. Doherty, F. W. Nolte, J. H. Allison, D. Reynolds, W. White Jr., R. Dumbarton, A. Finlayson, R. Patterson, D. Hughes, C. Late Duke of Connaught's
Antiques Go for a Song

LONDON (CP) — Wartime brides picked up a bunch of bargains for their homes at a sale of furniture belonging to the Duke of Connaught, former Governor-General of Canada. The sale was held at Bagshot Park, the Duke's country home.

Except for a few surprises, prices for the furniture were low. A Regency table, piano and stool, shown at the Royal Exhibition of furniture were knocked down for the equivalent of $300. A Swedish empire mahogany suite realized only $260 and a Chippendale mahogany side table $65.

WIVES AND WAGES

It's hard to believe, but there seem to be a few fellows in Britain who wield the family purse strings with miserly fingers, judging by the hue and cry raised by a women's organization for an "equal share" of the weekly pay envelope.

And this, girls, after all those stories about the grasping wife who appears bright and early each pay day to snatch the bundle from the henpecked spouse before he has chance to count it. Anyway, the Married Women's Association has taken up the cudgels on behalf of those housewives who seemingly cannot wheedle, coax or cajole even a bit of pin money from their husbands. The body has launched a movement to make it illegal for husbands to refuse to divulge the secrets of the wage packet and to rally women to support the introduction of a bill in Parliament to obtain "economic justice for wives."

LONDON CONFERENCE

The campaign will come into being officially at a national conference in London. One of the planks of the proposed platform will be a demand for an "equal share" of the weekly cheque. "Marriage is supposed to be a perfect partnership," declared Mrs. Juanita Francis, 34-year-old chairman and just as fiery as her red hair. "But how can that be in households where the wife does not get her share of the partnership income?"

"Under the existing laws wives can be treated, financially, as serfs. This does happen where the husband holds the purse strings. These 'feudal' husbands pay the household bills, buy the family clothes—such as they consider necessary—and their wives have to beg for money."

MAKING COINS

Speaking of money, there are a lot of women making coins so fast they are pretty tired and worn at the end of a day. The Royal Mint is employing women for the first time in its long history and they now number nearly half the staff. They began by inspecting the finished coins as they passed on a traveling belt. Soon they took over the presses which stamp the coins on both sides and mill the edges of silver pieces.

Scanties, panties and petticoats have become plainer and simpler—by order. Under a Board of Trade order future supplies of underclothes must have no frilling or feather-stitching and no material of any kind may be inserted for "effect only."

To Drive Transport

Miss Paula Merrix, popular member of the Victoria Lawn Tennis Club and a regular summer visitor to this city, left Monday evening for Vancouver en route for No. 6 Manning Depot, Toronto, where she will train as a transport driver in the Women's Division of the R.C.A.F.

Miss Merrix, who is 18, was born in Victoria, the daughter of Rev. A. Ronald Merrix, 116 Montecito Avenue, Piedmont, Cal., and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. P. Merrix, 1023 Collinson Street, Victoria.

She was born in Victoria, her father having been a lay reader at Christ Church Cathedral for some years before his ordination and transfer to the south. Miss Merrix received her early schooling at Miss Wallace's School, Piedmont, and was this year a sophomore at Mills College, where she won the school scholarship for academic ability, and was elected treasurer of the Associated Students of Mills College for the term 1942-43. Among awards won for tennis was the Northern California Girls' Inter-Scholastic Tennis Association award for singles competition of all private schools in Northern California, and she was Victoria's City champion for 1939 and 1940.

EMERSON CLUB

The Emerson Club will meet at the Absolute Science Centre, Room B, Campbell Building, this evening at 8.

Saanich District No. 5—An A.R.P. meeting will be held in the Cloverdale School on Friday evening at 8. It is expected a member of the armed forces will give a short talk on gas and incendiary bombs. A full attendance is requested.

Scotswoman from Malaya Describes Shocking Ordeal

When she stood on a Sydney apartment veranda and watched Jap subs shell that Australian city, the episode was a relatively minor incident in the crowded life of Mrs. A. M. Duncan.

Here on the long journey from Kuala Lumpur, through Singapore, to Sydney, thence to San Francisco, the attractive wife of an engineer in the Malay States is resting with her husband's aunt, Mrs. A. S. Christie, 1296 Richardson Street. She hopes to return to her home town, Aberdeen, Scotland, to await news of her husband, Jim, whom she last saw on volunteer service in Singapore in January and from whom she last heard on Feb. 9.

She tells a harrowing story, much of which she declines to permit in print.

"In Malaya and Singapore we didn't expect attack any more than you do here now. We thought it possible, probably in a few months' time when we considered it last December, but we were certainly not prepared."

The fall of Malaya she attributes to lack of planes and lack of equipment.

RIFLES AGAINST TOMMY GUNS

"What good are rifles against tommy guns?" she asks. Mrs. Duncan left Kuala Lumpur on Christmas Day, riding in the back of an army ambulance with half a dozen other Scotswomen whom she had sheltered as the Japanese forced them from their homes further north. At that time the Nipponese were already machine gunning trains on the route. Her husband, having seen her safely in Singapore, returned to his mine and left only the day before the Japs took over.

The story of Singapore, she said, was one of unpreparedness. "Sir Shenton Thomas told us not to evacuate, that there would be no evacuation. If we had done what we were told we would all have been in the hands of the Japanese now."

Raid on Kuala Lumpur had been intermittent, coming every other night. In Singapore they were regular. Planes came over and dropped their bombs each night. Most of each evening, she said, was spent in an air raid shelter.

EVACUATED BY PLANE
On Jan. 20 her husband insisted she leave Singapore by plane. On the way to the airport she and other passengers had to dive for a ditch as the Japs roared over again. In a blacked-out air transport she left the southern bastion, flying over a circuitous route to Port Darwin, where the plane ran into a terrific storm. In five days the party reached Sydney.

How did she stand the constant bombing?
"You get accustomed to it, but you can't help thinking the next one is going to hit the building you're in. Half the house which sheltered us was blown away one night, but none of the occupants was hurt."

Her experiences she considers mild in comparison to the terrific nerve-shattering bombing attacks on unprotected volunteers in one area near Singapore.

Nobody, she states, knows the whole story of Malaya. "But don't ever doubt the scorched earth policy was applied. Every mine and every rubber plantation was destroyed to prevent its use by the enemy," she says.

"They should have militarized Singapore, sent out all the women and children. If they had, the situation might have been different."

STORY OF TRAGEDY

She speaks only briefly of the Malaya Peninsula campaign, how the Japs swarmed through "impenetrable" jungle, taking to the trees when necessary, how the British forces there fought gallantly but futilely against the invader; how one regiment brought only 17 men back.

"We lost everything. I got out with only 44 pounds of clothing. But I should count myself lucky," she says.

She smiles as she refers to the fate of the family car. Her husband had gone to the bank. When he returned to the automobile it had been blitzed. The tires and wheels were gone as was the top. He reported to the police and brought an officer back to view the wreckage. When they arrived, even the car was gone. It had been hauled away as scrap.

In Sydney she was aroused on the evening the Jap subs went to work.

"We watched the gunfire and saw the depth charges go down. Shells whistled over our heads. I remarked it could be Japanese submarines, but I never dreamed it was."

She found the Australians strongly pro-American and pro-Canadian, hoping generally that the United States would take over the Island continent.

ON TROOPSHIP

Mrs. Duncan speaks little of her journey across the Pacific. "The men aboard were most courteous, but we had to live on the ship with our Mae Wests continually at our sides." Naval and military restrictions prevent her from reporting incidents on the voyage and she doubts if she should say the crossing was made on a troopship.

Separation from her belongings is becoming second nature to her. Coming north to Seattle on her way to Victoria she parted company with her bags when immigration requirements held her over a day in the Sound City while her luggage came ahead.

Now her wish is to get back to Aberdeen. "They say it might be tempting Providence to try another hazardous trip. But I think my husband will be sent there if he can escape or gain release."

Clubwomen's News

The Women's Auxiliary to the Anti-aircraft Regiment will meet at the Y.W.C.A. at 2:30 Wednesday.

Victoria Women's Institute will hold a basket picnic at the "Willows," Oak Bay, Friday afternoon. Members and friends may phone E3748 or E3793 for particulars.

The monthly meeting of the W.A. to the Britannia Branch, No. 7, Canadian Legion, was held in the board room recently, Mrs. E. Jarvis presiding. Two new members admitted were Mrs. C. Davey and Mrs. G. Baker. A transfer member from Vancouver, Mrs. E. Parker, and a visitor from Ontario, Mrs. A. Roper, were received ready for distribution by the convenor, Mrs. H. Millar. Members placing flowers on the memorial table for the month are Mrs. J. Dempster and Mrs. H. E. Parker; members to attend funerals, Mrs. E. Jarvis and Mrs. G. Ree. Donations for the imaginary bazaar are to be brought in at the night meeting, Sept. 8.

Card socials will be resumed Sept. 10. On Saturday, Aug. 22, the T.V.A. Veterans are holding a tag day. Volunteers to tag are asked to phone Mrs. E. Jarvis, E7863.

Miss Canada Makes Debut in Duncan

Duncan and the Cowichan area have supported all war loans and war savings stamp drives in a large way and they are determined to do their bit in the forthcoming campaign. Miss Canada who is the leading figure in the War Savings Drive, appeared in Duncan Saturday and is shown in the above picture outside the Cowichan Merchants Ltd., with members of the forces and some of the workers who will help put Duncan over the top.

Red Cross Notes

CORDOVA BAY

Sponsored by the Cordova Bay Red Cross Unit, and convened by Mrs. B. Dyer, a concert was held in McMorran's pavilion Friday night.

The proceeds amounted to $42.10. The program was opened by Mr. K. M. Lewis, who, in a short address, explained the Red Cross way of getting parcels of food to prisoners of war, the entire proceeds of the evening's entertainment being for that purpose. Mr. Lewis also told of the work of the local unit since its beginning in April, 1940. Just under $1,000 had been turned over to headquarters by the unit up to the end of July. J. J. O'Byrne acted as master of ceremonies. Frank Merryfield, "The Cornish Wizard," gave sleight of hand tricks; Mrs. Kathleen Green, who does "a one-woman act," gave half a dozen numbers; the Misses D. and F. Smith played a piano and violin duet; Reg. Stofer sang to his own guitar accompaniment and Miss Betty Murray danced, accompanied on the piano by Mrs. J. A. Berrington. Miss Marjory Boorman sang, accompanied by Mr. Boorman. Miss Florence Clough presented groups of her pupils in dances, with Mrs. Gray at the piano. After the concert the entertainers had supper at the home of Mr. Lewis. Mrs. Lewis was assisted in serving by Mrs. Noel Thomas and Mrs. Dyer.

Spaniards Deal To Cry for Help
A U.S. GULF COAST PORT (AP)—Survivors of a small British merchant ship, torpedoed in the Caribbean July 21, with a loss of five lives, reported upon landing at a Gulf Coast port today that a Spanish ship passed close by their lifeboats soon after the sinking but ignored their pleas for help.

The ship was attacked at 4:30 a.m. while 17 miles from land. Three torpedoes hit. Forty-nine survivors, of whom four were hurt in the explosions, got away in three lifeboats.

The Spanish ship arrived at the scene at daybreak, the survivors said, and approached close enough for the men in the lifeboats to talk to the officers on the bridge, but it refused to pick them up and sailed on its way. Later the lifeboats managed to make land.

Ontario Schools Open Week Later Than B.C.
TORONTO (CP)—Rural public and separate schools will open on the usual date, the day following the Labor Day holiday, Sept. 8, it was stated today by the Ontario Department of Education. Secondary schools will remain closed until Sept. 22 as a measure to assist farmers in getting in their harvests, it has been announced. (Victoria schools open Sept. 1.)

POLICE SUBDUE AXE-WIELDER
NEW WESTMINSTER (CP)—An axe-wielding parole patient from the Provincial Mental Hospital here struggled with police officers before he was subdued and taken into custody today.

Police said two officers answering an emergency call to the man's Sapperton home were met by the patient, who refused them admittance. They managed to seize him before he could secure the axe, which was lying in the passageway. The officers were notified previously that the man, swinging the double-bladed axe, had threatened to do away with his wife.

Both policemen were slightly cut and bruised before they were able to handcuff the man, who is being returned to Essondale.

Government Halves Vancouver A.R.P. Costs
VANCOUVER (CP)—The federal government has cut in half the Vancouver civilian protection committee's request for $30,000 to cover air raid precaution administration costs.

The provincial civilian protection committee, which handles federal A.R.P. funds, today notified the Vancouver committee that it would receive this year a grant of $15,000 for A.R.P. administration costs. The Vancouver group showed its administration costs as $5,000 a month, but the advisory council approved expenditures of only $2,500 a month, of which the Dominion has agreed to pay 50 per cent.

Mrs. Churchill Opens 'Y' Clubhouse Given For War Workers

TORONTO—One of Britain's oldest industrial firms, Messrs. Joseph Lucas Ltd., has given "rent free" for the duration, a fine building, which will be used by the British Y.W.C.A. as a clubhouse for war workers. "The gift is a token of appreciation of the war effort of the many women and girls employed by them and of those employed in adjoining factories." This news came to the National Council of the Y.W.C.A. today. The new club, located at Soho Hill, Birmingham, was opened recently by Mrs. Winston Churchill, wife of Britain's Prime Minister, who in addition to her many other duties is president of the "Y.W.C.A. Wartime Fund," which in Canada is known as the "Mrs. Winston Churchill Fund for British Service Women," in aid of which Canadian Y.W.C.A.'s have raised $60,000.

MRS. CHURCHILL SPEAKS

"Women in industry need clubs just as much as do the women with the forces," Mrs. Churchill said, at the opening ceremonies, which were attended by Dame Elizabeth Cadbury, president, Birmingham Y.W.C.A.; Miss Mary Curwen, O.B.E., national general secretary of the Y.W.C.A.; the Lord Mayor of Birmingham, and the Archdeacon of Aston. Mrs. Churchill was in a cheerful mood and in her black and white patterned crepe de chine dress and short coat to match looked the embodiment of confidence.

"There isn't much opportunity for social life in these days of transplanted families, restricted transport and general rationing," Mrs. Churchill said. "We all know how much easier it is to work well when we are happy in our leisure hours. Even if a girl is too tired to do more than rest in a comfortable chair or have a snack at the canteen, the psychological effect of cheerful and colorful surroundings like these makes all the difference."

"Just as one can discern the common purpose behind all this diversity of hard work so one sees everywhere a common ideal—a desire for a more vital way of living, for a greater happiness achieved through development of talents and through congenial outlets for youthful energy."

SOCIAL CENTRE

"But to give all this a fair chance a background is needed—a social centre within easy reach of factory and home. Here, thanks to the generosity and imagination of Messrs. Lucas, is just that background and here also is the Y.W.C.A. with its long practical experience ready to organize every kind of recreation asked for—from World Affairs lectures and cookery classes to dancing and drama. Now it remains with the members to decide what kind of life grows from this environment—from leisure spent in pleasant surroundings, from the stimulation of social contacts, from the impetus given to hidden talents."

The club is a spacious building with a large canteen, an upper hall for dancing and "Keep Fit" classes, a lounge, a library and many other facilities. Already it has 600 members. The club is open from 10 a.m. to 10 p.m. daily. Table tennis, darts and other indoor games can be played all day and there is dancing every evening except Sunday when there is a Bible reading group. A "Brains Trust" or lecture is held each Friday, and on many Sundays country rambles are arranged.

Most of the members are factory workers, but there are also conductresses, shop girls, teachers, nurses, girls in government offices and A.R.P. and a number of 16 to 18-year-olds who do the housekeeping as their mothers are out working all day.

Men of the forces and men friends of members are welcomed as guests and boys can become members and share in mixed activities.

The canteen is already immensely popular and serves some 200 dinners daily. Over 70 volunteers are helping in the club and between them they manage most of the canteen work. As in all Y.W.C.A. clubs, the members themselves will determine the type of program they prefer.

Girls at Boeing's Too 'Flirtatious' Says Manager

By AMY PORTER

Associated Press Staff Writer
SEATTLE—It's too bad, but the girls aren't working out any too well in the vast plant where the United States army's crack bombers, the Flying Fortresses, are made.

H. Oliver West, executive vice-president and guiding genius of production at the Boeing Aircraft Company, said today that although some women were doing fine work, a great many "are here for other than serious purposes."

TOO 'SOCIAL'

"They pursue social life in the factory workrooms, it appears; they will not wear proper clothing, as suggested by the personnel office; and they do not confine their permanent waves in nets, nor even snoods, although they've been told time and again that long flowing bobs are apt to get caught, painfully, in machinery. They are in fact, said West, 'youngsters in search of a good time.'"

Nevertheless, West concedes that it is absolutely essential to utilize womanpower to keep the production of the famous Boeing Flying Fortresses up to par. As of this month, 26 per cent of all employees at Boeing are women, and the percentage probably will increase, he said.

The solution, as outlined by West at an interview with newspaper correspondents taking part in the National Association of Manufacturers' tour of war plants, is gradually to segregate the women.

TO SEGREGATE THEM

"We intend to put most of them into sub-assembly work," West explained, "separating them from the men in shops on the second floor balcony." The reporters had just returned from viewing the balcony, along with the rest of Boeing's busy, noisy plant.

Sub-assembly was suited to women workers, West continued, because generally it called for less skilled and less arduous work and afforded fewer opportunities for flirtation on company time.

During the conference, four young women were ushered in from their work benches to offer good-natured rebuttal to "the boss."

"I didn't mean these girls, of course," West assured. "They're just what we need."

They were an ex-receptionist, an ex-elevator operator, an ex-cream factory worker and an ex-teacher.

 JOHNS-MANVILLE

Look in Cellar for Fuel Waste Source

In several of these articles we have told how Johns-Manville Rock Wool Home Insulation can help you, as a home owner, save fuel next winter. There is still another J-M product which assists you in conserving fuel vital to Canada's war program. It's the insulation that covers your heating pipes.

You see, if those pipes are not covered with an efficient insulating material, a lot of heat from your furnace escapes into the cellar instead of going upstairs to the radiators where you want it. Why not make a point of checking up on your heating pipes next time you go downstairs? If they are not insulated—or if the covering needs repairs—it will pay you to call in your plumbing and heating contractor. He knows all about Johns-Manville Pipe Coverings and will be glad to recommend the right kind for your heating system. Or, if you prefer, drop a card to Johns-Manville, 199 Bay St., Toronto, for free literature on these important fuel-saving materials.

Esquimalt

Plan Emergency Water Supplies

On suggestion from Chief A.R.P. Warden and Chief of Police H. W. V. Pecknold, the Esquimalt Council, Monday night, authorized, for A.R.P. purposes, the construction and installation of sand boxes, the construction of four concrete water tanks and the purchase of 50, 50-gallon water barrels.

The sand boxes will be built to hold sand hitherto just dumped on street corners. This sand has been spread around and taken away by children playing in it before it could be collected by householders for storage to extinguish incendiary bombs in case of air raid.

The four cement water reservoirs, to be used in case water mains are smashed by bombs, will be seven feet by five feet by five feet in dimension and will cost $26 each.

The wooden water barrels will be purchased by the municipality at a cost of $3 each for the same purpose. Residents may buy these from the municipality at cost price to be kept on their premises. The water can be used should the regular water supply be disrupted.

Municipal clerk, G. Pullen, was instructed by the council to make further inquiries pending Esquimalt taking action upon a request from Oak Bay that it present a joint case with it and other municipalities when they appear before the forthcoming hearing of the Public Utilities Commission regarding the B.C. Electric Railway Company and the Victoria Gas Company. The hearing is scheduled to start Aug. 24 in Vancouver.

8-year-old's Salvage Unit

Call it, if you will, a militant way of collecting salvage to aid the war effort, but it shows a brilliant bit of organizing for an eight-year-old girl.

Thursday morning, Lanny Sharpe, eight-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Sharpe, 823 Viewfield Road, tumbled out of bed earlier than usual, went into her mummy's room and announced to a startled parent:

"I want to get all the kids in the neighborhood together and collect salvage to help win the war!"

Mummy thought it was a good idea and told her aspiring daughter to get to work. Lanny went out into the yard and in no time had painted a big "Recruits Wanted" on a piece of board. This she put up on the fence and under a lean-to canopy by the fence established a recruiting office.

The kids in the neighborhood noticed this and went in and enlisted. Soon she had quite an army—80, a call for further organization. Getting some cloth, Lanny cut out sergeant's, corporal's and lance-corporal's stripes and passed them out to her most trusted aides. Because it was her idea, she made herself a staff sergeant and directed operations from her booth.

She assigned her young army, ranging in age from three to 12 years, to different streets and then joined in the collection herself. Pushing baby buggies and wagons—in fact anything on wheels—they spent all Thursday, Friday and Saturday collecting scrap iron, paper, rubber, bottles, rags and cardboard. Saturday night her daddy's backyard looked like a second hand junk enclosure. So they phoned for the B.C. Salvage Corps and Monday morning a truck called, the salvage was loaded on and taken away.

Her father said today the backyard was again looking like a junkyard. And on top of this his energetic young daughter's lean-to is still open for juvenile recruits. The salvage unit is bent on cleaning up all the junk in Esquimalt and Victoria West—because an ambitious little girl told her mother she wanted to help the war effort.

They'll Do It Every Time

No More Rationing For 3 Months

LAKE COUCHICHIING, Ont. (CP)—The Wartime Prices and Trade Board does not intend to extend rationing beyond gasoline, sugar, tea and coffee, for the next three months at least, Kenneth Taylor, secretary of the board, said here today at a meeting of the Canadian Institute of Public Affairs.

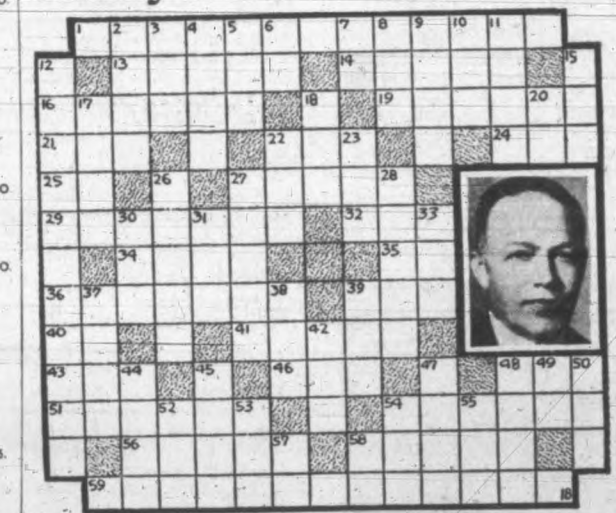

Mr. Taylor made the statement in answer to a question from J. M. Gray of Winnipeg.

He added conditions were changing rapidly, and should the Japanese invade Australia, or the North American shipping lanes to Australia, the situation might call for further rationing immediately.

Don Wilsons Split

HOLLYWOOD (AP)—Peggy Kent Wilson, daughter of the late movie executive Sidney Kent, said here she was leaving shortly for Las Vegas, Nev., to obtain a divorce from Don Wilson, retired radio announcer. The two have been separated for some time.

WHEN THE final horse race is run at Hastings Park, Labor Day, we feel certain some kind of record will have been established for winning favorites. Way the public choices have been charging first across the wire, day after day, is really something. Experts figure that a good percentage for winning favorites is anywhere between 35 and 40 per cent. To date we know Little Saratoga is well above that mark. Of course this is partly due to the fact the horses are running for 42 days over the same strip.

Officials in charge of the Vancouver races have been broadcasting about the fine collection of thoroughbreds on hand. If this were correct, it is hard to understand three or four races which were run off the last two days. Last Friday Riverworth took part in a race in which he was such an outstanding contender, win price was knocked down to $2.75. He formed part of that record low daily double of $3.35. Then on Saturday Beauty Warm and Simtee were dropped into a couple of spots where they would have had to literally break a leg not to win. The public made them odds on favorites to return win prices of $2.55 and $3.10, respectively.

Victoria-owned Killarney L. has proven a big surprise to the race followers. Up until this season the six-year-old brown gelding was never a threat at anything over six furlongs. He was distinctly a sprinter. But his new trainer has certainly lengthened the big fellow out. Few days ago he stepped out and won over a mile and a sixteenth and Saturday ran a sparkling second to Frankworth, last year's handicap champion, over a mile and an eighth.

Good Golf Entertainment

By SCOTT YOUNG
TORONTO (CP)—No matter what happens to the golf in Vancouver's $2,500 Lions Gate open next week, the entertainment will be something special. Among the entries are John (The Mysterious) Montague, Guy Kibbee, Oliver Hardy and Bob Crosby. Hardy and Kibbee, that would be a match to follow. It isn't official, but Ross Trimble probably will return as Ottawa Rough Riders' coach this season. The army and air forces have turned him down because of "gridiron knees," a complaint suffered by almost every football veteran. It merely means that the knees bends both ways, which admittedly would be disconcerting to a drill instructor.

Ever hear of a fighter being licked by home-sickness? Manager Pit Audette of Montreal says that's the trouble with his 21-year-old welterweight, Fernand Demers. Audette has towed Demers around several United States rings as an auxiliary to the successful campaigning of Johnny Greco. Demers has lost a majority of his bouts. Of his homesickness, Audette said: "He can't sleep or eat, much less fight."

FINE RECORD

Jack (Vancouver Sun) Patterson reports that Ed Trusty, a racetrack veteran who started to follow the dabbins in Toronto, is leading trainer at Vancouver's Hastings Park this season. Trusty's record is unusual: 59 starters, only nine out of the money. . . . thoroughbreds under his wing have knocked over more than $7,000 in prize money. . . .

Henri Rochon, Quebec provincial junior tennis champ, doesn't wear socks when playing. . . . if he could get along without using any balls, that would really be something. . . . speaking of balls, things are getting tough in Hamilton, Ont., this week a baseball fan was fined $5 and $13 costs for running off with a ball fouled over a fence.

BALTIMORE (AP)—Doctors have taken four chips out of left elbow of Cliff Melton, New York Giants southpaw pitcher. Although saying the operation a success, the physicians said the hurler probably would not re-join his mates until next spring.

scene of the Pacific Northwest amateur boxing championships next spring was expressed by Jess Addinall, Vancouver, secretary-treasurer of the B.C. Amateur Boxing Association, on a visit to the office Monday. "I would like nothing better than to see the championships held here," Addinall told us. "I have talked it over with several of the boys actively interested in the sport here and they seem keen on the idea. All they have to do is get a sponsor and make an early application. They must remember the championships are something that cannot be put over in a week or a month. The tournament must be arranged and built up during the winter months."

Addinall informed us the north west tournament held last year in Vancouver produced some of the finest boxing ever witnessed in the mainland city. "The meet was every bit as good as the trials for the British Empire Games several years ago. You can count on attracting the finest amateurs in the Pacific Northwest. With the proper handling the championships are a cinch to prove a success in every way."

Visitor to the city over the weekend was Frank Barrieau, formerly one of the finest middleweight fighters in the Pacific Northwest. Now a resident of San Francisco, Barrieau fought out of Vancouver and will be well-remembered by the followers of the mitt slingers about 20 years ago. He paid a flying visit to the city to visit his brother. Two of his most famous bouts were against Jack Britton and Leach Cross. The name Barrieau brings to mind the fact that Joe Bayley fought another brother, Ernie, at Vancouver, with the Victoria lightweight star scoring a knock-out victory.

Bill Leahy Winner Of Rifle Competition

The Reg. Wood annual challenge cup for club supremacy was won by Bill Leahy at the weekend shoot of the Sportsmen's Rifle Club. Leahy made an average score for standing and prone of 75 out of a possible 100 under difficult shooting conditions. Stuart Kennedy was second with a score of 71.

W. Buxton presented the prizes for the previous four-weeks' shoot, won by Fred Moore, D. Noble and Bill Leahy. Other competitions for the day were as follows:

50 yards, standing position, R. Laidlaw.
100 yards, prone position, Stuart Kennedy.
100 yards, disappearing target, Cecil Burgess.
100 yards, prone position, hunting rifles, D. Noble.

THIRD POSTPONEMENT

WASHINGTON (AP)—Lee Savold's heavyweight fight date with squat Tony Musto of Chicago was postponed Monday night for the third time. The weather was responsible.

Promoter Joe Turner announced the 16-round scrap would go on Friday night.

Red Recruits

Eric Tipton, left, tells Frank Kelleher that he also knows how it feels to be in a major league uniform. Cincinnati Reds acquired pair from the New York Yankee chain-Tipton from Kansas City and Kelleher from Newark—in an attempt to put some power in outfield.

It's the Pixies Again

The photographer said: "Honest, boss, I don't know what happened—musta been sun spots, or something!" But, anyhow, here's his slap-happy picture of a spirited bit of action as Allie Stolz whips Chalky Wright in Madison Square Garden. Ted Williams Has Safe Lead

CHICAGO (AP)—Ted Williams won the 1941 American League batting crown with a .406 mark, but this year that figure has been as far away as the moon.

After the Boston Red Sox outfielder rose to the top of the batting list for the first time in early July, he hovered around the .340's.

He hit .352 three weeks ago, only to fall off again.

Now Ted is up at .352 again by climbing 11 points in the week of play through Sunday's games. His nemesis of a week ago, New York Yankees' Joe Gordon, slumped four points and now there are 16 percentage figures separating the leading Williams from his nearest pursuer.

Taft Wright of Chicago White Sox managed to hold third place with a .331 average, just one point better than Stan Spence of Washington.

REAL MONOPOLY

Ted's monopoly on three specialty departments continued as he ran his leading total of runs batted in to 100, home runs to 25 and runs scored to 100.

Hank Borowy of the Yankees was restored to the pitching lead as last week's two front men, Soud Chandler of the Yanks and George Caser of St. Louis each suffered a loss. Borowy's mark is 11 wins and 2 defeats. Ted Hugheson of Boston had a 15 and 3 mark. Chandler 13 and 3, Ernie Bonham of New York 14 and 4.

Lynn Patrick Divorced

RENO, Nev. (AP)—Lynn Patrick, left winger on the New York Rangers' hockey team, was divorced Monday by Dorothy Wilma Patrick.

They were married at New York April 8, 1939, and have one child, whose custody was awarded Mrs. Patrick.

Yanks-Dodgers Feud Revived

Would Boost Series

If New York Yankees and Brooklyn Dodgers don't meet in the world series this fall, they'll waste a grudge that would be worth more at the box office than all the .300 hitters on both clubs.

Born in the post-season classic last October but lost amid the pennant squabbles of the current campaign, the ill-feeling between the crosstown rivals has come out of retirement and shows signs of snowballing into quite a fuss between now and the end of the line.

The sudden reappearance of the friction can be traced directly to the front offices of both teams, the occupants of which know better than anyone else how many customers a good grudge battle can pull through the gates.

It all came about when the Yankees discovered that their army-navy relief doubleheader with Washington Senators at the Stadium Sunday would have the toughest kind of competition at Ebbets Field, where the Dodgers had increased their meeting with New York Giants from a single game to a double bill.

The Yankee players, who feel that the Dodgers are trying to show up the American League in general and the Yankees in particular in the matter of war relief funds, are recalling the happenings of last October.

Among other things, they remember those close pitches, one of which nearly led to blows between New York's Joe DiMaggio and Brooklyn's Whitlow Wyatt. So the feud is on again, and the fellows who handle the ticket sale hope it stays on until world series time.

CARDS SWEEP SERIES

Meanwhile, St. Louis Cardinals aren't conceding the Dodgers the National League pennant. With Brooklyn idle Monday, Cards sliced the Dodger lead to 7½ games by whipping Cincinnati Reds, 5 to 2, to sweep a four-game series.

St. Louis broke a 2 to 2 tie in the seventh with two runs on a double by Marty Marion, a triple by Johnny Hopp and a single by Howard Krist, who went all the way on the mound although he yielded 10 hits, two more than the Cards collected off Roy Starr.

In the only other National League game, New York Giants tightened their grip on third place, four games ahead of Cincinnati, by edging out Boston Braves, 3 to 2. Babe Barna broke up the game when he singled with the bases loaded, the score tied, and two out in the ninth. It was Barna's second game-winning blow in as many days and the fifth straight win for the Giants.

Yankees played their last game of the season in Philadelphia, swamping the Athletics, 15 to 0, as Red Ruffing hurled his fourth shutout of the year and the 42nd of his career. Ruffing, registered his 11th victory of 1941 and the 255th of all time to tie Ted Lyons of Chicago White Sox for the lead among all present-day hurlers in lifetime wins.

The defeat eliminated Philadelphia as a pennant possibility. St. Louis Browns came from behind twice to beat Cleveland Indians, 5 to 2, in a night game, the only other contest on the schedule. Browns pulled within a game and a half of the third-place Tribe.

Boxla Playoff Carded Tonight

In the second game of the best of five series for the right to meet Bays-Douglas Tire in the city lacrosse finals, Oaklands and United Services will tangle at the Sports Centre tonight at 8.30. Services won the first game, Saturday-night, by a narrow 17 to 14 score, and are confident of making it two straight.

It was a week ago tonight that Oaks overcame a six-goal deficit in the last quarter and forced the servicemen into overtime, finally beating them. Manager Bob McInnes thinks it can be done again.

Both teams will be at full strength for the battle, and the fans will get another chance to see youth and speed play against experience.

Tonight's preliminary will bring together Young Jokers and James Bay, juvenile A clubs, in a city playoff game. It is slated for 7. The winner will meet Oak Bay, league winners, who ended up just a couple of points ahead of Young Jokers.

VIC WEST WINS PARK SOFTBALL

A four-run rally in the first inning sent Victoria West softballers away to a flying start Monday evening as they defeated Oak Bay 8 to 2 at Central Park in the deciding game of the best of three series for supervised playground honors here.

Earlier the Victoria West boys had taken Central Park two straight and had divided a previous pair of games with the Oak Bay lads.

Wally Yeamans and Hugh Farguhar handled the fixture. The short score follows:

Oak Bay 0 0 0 0 2 0 0 0 2

Victoria West 4 1 0 0 3 0 0 x 8

Batteries—R. Latham and H. Warrender; E. Gardner and S. Pimlott.

CITY POLICE WIN TROPHIES

The four-man revolver team from the city police department came home with three trophies from the annual revolver shoot of the Seattle police force over the week-end.

The team, composed of Constables Sam McKenzie, Charlie Webb, Alex Briggs and John Mason, won the A. W. Leonard Trophy and the Norton International Good Will Trophy for the highest Canadian team. Constable Webb won the Ben Pater Trophy for the highest score of any Canadian police officer.

Vast Destruction Noted at Mainz

LONDON (CP)—Daylight photographs show areas of "complete destruction" totalling 135 acres in Mainz, German city blasted by R.A.F.-R.C.A.F. raids the night of Aug. 11 and 12. The Air Ministry announced Monday.

"Great patches of devastation by fire and high explosive bombs" attested to the accuracy and effectiveness of the bombing which hit all parts of Mainz and its suburbs. The ministry said the pictures were not sufficiently clear for newspaper reproduction.

Mainz, besides having important industries, is a garrison town with permanent barracks and military depots, many of which were destroyed or damaged extensively.

Ontario Needs Cannery

TORONTO (CP)—Alex MacLaren, director of the farm service corps, announced here today more women are needed to help in the canning industry in Ontario. Representatives of the canning industry reported that 1,500 women were needed in the eastern part of the province, and the shortage of workers was still more critical in the Niagara Peninsula.

Trying 'Gazogene'

QUEBEC (CP)—The provincial government is continuing to back experiments with "gazogene," a fluid which it is hoped will eventually be used instead of gasoline on the farm and in small industries. It was announced today. The experiments have been centralized at McGill University in Montreal.

Takes Four Firsts in English Meet

WITH THE R.C.A.F. SOMEWHERE IN ENG. (CP)—Led by their commanding officer, Wing Cmdr. Paul Y. Davoud of Kingston, Ont., who himself scored 10 points, track and field athletes from an R.C.A.F. night fighter squadron swept a meet held for Canadian personnel stationed in the Midlands. Fifteen teams took part.

The night fighters more than doubled the score of their nearest rivals from the Demon squadron of coastal command. The Demons rolled up 23 points to take second place, while a team from a wireless station scored 20 points, all won by Sgt. J. Addison of Victoria, who won individual honors by sweeping the sprints.

In second place in the individual contest was F.O. Tom Brundage of Toronto, a Davoud man who had the weights events all his own way. Sgt. Pilot Mart Naylor of Vancouver was third.

Ft. Sgt. Milt Tisdale of Vancouver, a Demon, took seconds in the shot put, discus and hop, step and jump, and placed first in the high jump. Tisdale was well known to basketball fans on the west coast. He played for two Dominion title winners.

The meet was organized by the Canadian Y.M.C.A., which presented the silver cup donated to the winning squadron.

Yanks Lose Henrich

CLEVELAND (AP)—Tommy Henrich, 26, took his coastguard physical examination Monday, but it will be at least several days before the New York Yankees' outfielder is sworn in as a first-class petty officer.

In Philadelphia, where the Yankees played the Athletics Monday, Mark Roth, secretary of the world champions, announced that outfielder George (Tuck) Stainback had been recalled from the club's Newark farm to replace Henrich.

Dorothy Dix: Women Will Still Be Women After the War

There has been much speculation about what women will do after the war, and whether, after having known the excitement of working at high pressure in large groups, and especially after having experienced the thrill of earning large salaries and having earned their own money, they will be willing to return to the domestic grind, which is performed mostly in solitude, and carries no bonuses or pay envelopes with it.

This question has been answered, to a large extent, by a questionnaire which has been sent out in England to the women workers, asking them what they wanted to do after the duration. Almost with one voice they replied that they long to go back to the normal life of women again. They want to be just wives and mothers. They want to fill the baby's bottle instead of filling shells in an ammunition plant, and to push a perambulator instead of driving a truck. They have even planned the little house they are going to have, with its bit of garden in the back and its flower beds in front, and curtains in the kitchen.

So that's that, and we need lose no more sleep in worrying over whether the war has defeminized women and wrecked the home as an institution. Apparently women will still be women under any and all conditions, and still wedded to their immemorial dream of the vine-wreathed cottage and a house in which they can surround themselves with their own belongings and putter around to their heart's content.

This report is interesting because it leads us to hope that one of the valuable by-products of the war will be to make women better satisfied with their lot as women. Deep down in the heart of practically every woman has been a drop of envy of men and a feeling that when God created Adam he gave him and his sons the best of everything, and poor Eve and her daughters only got the leftovers.

No wife ever believes that her husband works as hard as she does. She pictures him as leading a life of almost Sybaritic ease, as compared with hers, and as spending most of his time gossiping with his companions, and telling and listening to good stories while she cooks and washes and mends and scrubs, and has no more entertaining company than the baby's walls and the children's squabbles.

And when she thinks that for all her hard labor she gets only her board and clothes, and those the worst in the family, she bewails her fate at having been born of the feminine persuasion.

But now, for the first time, she has had the opportunity to take a man's place in the world and do a man's work and really find out how the other half lives, and she has discovered that it isn't all beer and skittles, as she had always believed it to be. She has found out what it is to toil to the point of exhaustion, then force herself to drive on and do more; to work under conditions that fret her nerves to fiddle-strings; to be bawled out by foremen; to be too tired at night to eat or sleep, and to know that every dollar she earns is wet with her sweat and blood.

Out of this experience comes the knowledge that her old domestic life, when she could command her own time and be her own boss, and stop for chats with the butcher and gossip over the back fence with her neighbor, and put off the washing until tomorrow if she didn't feel like doing it today, wasn't such a bad life, after all.

So it is no wonder that in the clash and clamor and stress and strain of war work that women are planning to go back to the little homes they once disdained, and that they are going to give to their husbands an understanding and a sympathy and an admiration that they have never given them before. For they have tried out the man's world and discovered how much strength and stamina it takes to stand up in it.

B.C. CANNERIES SIGN UP UNION

VANCOUVER (CP) — Daniel O'Brien, organizer for the Canadian Congress of Labor, said here today that the Fruit and Vegetable Workers' Union and Canadian Canneries, Western, had completed a "very favorable agreement" covering two Okanagan Valley canneries, at Penticton and Oliver, B.C.

O'Brien said a wage increase of 16½ per cent had been agreed to, and that the company was co-operating in applying for its ratification by the regional war labor board.

He said the agreement also provides for a week's holiday with pay for employees who have worked 10 months, and includes the setting up of a grievance committee, with a clause providing for arbitration of all grievances which the company and employees cannot settle.

Another clause in the agreement provides for seniority rights and for retention of seniority by those who enlist in the armed services. Women are to receive the same pay as men, providing they do the same work satisfactorily.

Nile River Built Egypt's Rich Delta Land

If there is any "one-river country" in the world it is Egypt. The mighty Nile stretches from one end of the land to the other.

When the Nile flows into the sea, it branches into several streams, but they all belong to the Nile. The largest of the branches are known as the Rosetta and the Damietta.

Near the point, where the Nile branches is Cairo, the largest city in Egypt. It is the capital of the country, and has a population of more than 1,300,000. King Farouk, the young Egyptian ruler, has his palace in Cairo.

The branch rivers of the lower Nile flow through what is called the "Nile delta." The soil in this delta has been called "the richest in the world."

The soil in the delta has been placed there mainly by the Nile River. Year after year, the delta has been built up by silt or mud carried there from higher parts of the river bed. With the passing of thousands of years, it has grown in size. Yet it was large and important in ancient times.

The city of Alexandria was built on the delta almost 2,300 years ago. It is the leading seaport of modern Egypt, and contains about half as many people as Cairo.

The Nile River is about 4,000 miles long, and it ranks among the "three largest rivers of the world." Its headwaters rise in the heart of Africa.

In most countries people are afraid of floods, or at least do not like to have them take place. In Egypt the story is different. The floods of the Nile are looked upon as a blessing!

Each year the Nile breaks into flood. The waters start to rise in June, and the river is at its greatest height in September. At Cairo the highest rise of the flood amounts to 23 feet!

High banks and walls alongside the Nile help save cities from being flooded, but elsewhere the waters are allowed to sweep over the banks. It has been known for thousands of years that the flood can do good to the farming lands of Egypt.

In the first place the flood waters are needed to give moisture to the soil. Rain seldom falls in Egypt, and without the floods there would not be enough water for crops. As it is, reservoirs are filled with flood water, and this water is used after the river goes back to its low level.

Club Members Learn Of Army Camp Life

Four members of the Victoria Gyo Club told of the operations and everyday life of an army camp Monday to other members of the club. They were Bert Challoner, R. Wilson, Art Minnis and Neil Grant, who returned last week from Camp Vernon.

Reports from each of the men told of how the modern army training has changed since the First World War. A complete reversion of the old regimental drill is noticed, according to Mr. Grant, president of the club.

"The psychological angle is used in modern warfare of today," he said, "and the men have to be tough." He told of how he and his unit had witnessed heavier army training of another unit at their camp. They followed their leaders through mud, heavily wooded areas and water.

Mr. Wilson said one of the most effective methods of warfare being taught new troops is infiltration. The men also were acquainted with pincer methods of attack.

According to Mr. Grant, Vernon camp "was one of the best I have ever been in or heard of."

Tax Collections Gain in August

City tax collections to date in August run $6,269 above those for the corresponding period during 1941 and have helped to lower the adverse difference between the cumulative total for this year and last, figures released by the assessor-collector's department today disclosed.

Up to Monday night $40,491 had been paid into the city since the beginning of the month, against $34,222 for the similar period in 1941.

As a result the total collections for the year to date now stand at $862,176, a figure only $26,445 below last year's $888,621. In 1941 records were established in the city for collections.

Playground Plan Shown to Parents

Many parents in Oak Bay were given the opportunity to witness the achievements of their children who have enjoyed supervised playgrounds during past weeks at the Willows Park, Monday afternoon. The program, supervised by an authoritative playground personnel, included folk dancing, tumbling, first aid demonstrations and other activities, which the youngsters have been doing since the opening of the playground program.

A softball game was also included in the demonstration. Displays of the children's work included woodwork projects, clay modeling, hooked rugs, French knitting, braided string, and scrapbooks and floral arrangements.

This morning a special aquatic display was given at the Crystal Garden. A splash party, to officially conclude the summer program, will be held in the pool Friday morning. Parents are invited to attend this function to see how their children have progressed in swimming ability.

Suggestions for next year's schedule for children will be discussed at a future meeting to be held early in September in Oak Bay Municipal Hall.

inspects Air Bases

Accompanied by a group of high-ranking officials from air force headquarters, Ottawa, Air Vice-Marshal J. A. Sully, A.F.C., member for personnel, arived in Victoria today on a tour of inspection of stations in Western Air Command.

After visiting Western Air Command headquarters, Air Vice-Marshal Sully and party will inspect several isolated coastal stations.

With him are Group Capt. M. M. Sisley, A.F.C., director of provost and securities services; Wing Cmdr. D. F. MacKell, director of personnel; Sqdr. Ldr. W. R. Kingsland, deputy director of postings and careers (officers); and Flt. Lt. C. F. Divine, staff officer to Air Vice-Marshal Sully.

He is the son of the late Harry John Miller, who was a well-known Washington state lumberman.

Producer Cowan was up with the lark this morning, accompanying Director John Farrow out to location to supervise the sequences being shot today.

Herb Stinson, the producer's assistant and publicity chief, also is back after a brief visit to Seattle.

Seven motorists were fined $2.50 each on parking charges in police court today. One was fined $15 for speeding and another $5 for disobeying a traffic signal.

Fire Chief Alex Munroe has asked anyone receiving uncollected advice to clean and repair their chimneys to get in touch with the fire department before doing any work.

The National Union of Machinists, Fitters and Helpers of Victoria will have an opportunity of airing their individual views regarding the national aims of their organization at a meeting Friday night in their Broad Street hall.

A permit calling for conversion of the old New England Cafe into an assembly hall was issued by the city building inspector's department late Monday to R. Gardom. Another permit covered a $600 re-roofing project on the city-owned house at 1728 Rockland Avenue.

Greater Victoria Philatelic Society will meet at the club rooms, Elk's Hall on Friday at 8. Feature will be an auction sale of British colonial stamps having a catalogue value of approximately $200. These stamps are carefully selected copies, every one being in good album condition. Visitors and prospective members will be welcomed.

Paul Mayovsky was fined $40 when he pleaded guilty to a charge of dangerous driving in police court today and $5 for having no driver's license. The charges arose from an accident on Johnson Street early Aug. 9, when Mayovsky's car sideswiped a parked car and then turned on its side 90 feet further east on Johnson.

The skip-stop system for city street cars will go into force some time before the end of the month. A. T. Goward, vice-president of the B.C. Electric Railway Co. Ltd., said today. Signs were being prepared to advise the travelling public of the corners where cars would stop, he said, and when they were in place the system would be instituted.

Ma Boo, 60-year-old Chinaman of Cabin 59, Theatre Alley, died in Jubilee Hospital at 12.55 this morning, less than hour after being rushed from his residence by police. Constables Thomas Stevenson and Robert Hiscock attended a call stating that Ma Boo was sick at his cabin. The coroner, Dr. E. C. Hart, said today death was from natural causes.

Seton Miller On 'Commando' Set

Screen writer Seton I. Miller is in town from Hollywood to "check up on some of the angles" of "The Commandos Come at Dawn," Lester Cowan's fighting Canadian picture now in production here.

He came to Victoria in company with Producer Cowan who has just returned after a flying trip to the movie colony. Cowan took the plane hop both ways and wasted no time in the south.

Miller is working on the script of Lester Cowan's newest movie, "The Heart of a City," a story of the amazing war courage of Britain's "little people," which will be produced in Hollywood.

One of the top-notchers in screen writing, Miller wrote or collaborated in writing such notable productions as "Here Comes Mr. Jordan," "Robin Hood," "Dawn Patrol," "Kid Galahad," "G Men" and "My Gal Sal."

"The Heart of a City" is based on the London blitz in which heroic British girls keep a metropolitan theatre going in spite of the Nazi raids.

"I feel that I have come back to my home territory," declared Miller at the Empress Hotel this morning before stepping into a car to take him to location at the Norwegian village on Finlayson Arm.

"I was born at Chehalis, Wash., and that is not so far from Victoria," he said.

He is the son of the late Harry John Miller, who was a well-known Washington state lumberman.

Fate of Hongkong Troops To Be Known in 3 Weeks

Three hundred men of the Canadian force, which surrendered at Hongkong, were either killed in action or are missing and it will be another three weeks before definite information is received in Canada as to the fate of the contingent, it is stated by Lt. Col. F. W. Clarke, Department of National Defence, Ottawa.

Leonard Acton, 1703 Fairfield Road, whose son, Lt. Col. Robert W. H. Acton, is with the headquarters staff of the Canadian contingent, received a letter from Col. Clarke today telling of recent steps which have been taken to find out from the Japanese the fate of the Canadians.

Col. Clarke wrote as follows: "We are informed that the Japanese have compiled and are forwarding a list of all ranks of the Canadian 'C' force taken prisoner of war at Hongkong. Already there have been unexpected delays and we cannot make reliable prediction as to when the list will come. On receipt of this list the officer in charge of records will immediately check the names against the nominal roll of each unit, and will send a wire to the next-of-kin of each soldier listed."

"In cases where there is information as to a soldier being wounded or ill, the message from the officer in charge of records will include this information."

Pioneer Salvation Army Man Dies Here

After a long illness, Samuel Lyne, born in Manchester, England, Jan. 27, 1863, died today at the family residence, 1461 May Street. He had lived here for the past seven years.

A pioneer officer of the Salvation Army, he was a friend of the founder, William Booth, leaving after 20 years' service with the rank of major. He became a member of the Masonic craft in England and was a charter member of St. Andrew's Lodge, Regina, where he was P.P.D.D.G.M. for the Regina district.

He was a director of the Regina Y.M.C.A. for many years and was license inspector for Regina city for more than 20 years.

He leaves his wife, Lillian; two daughters, Mrs. W. Woodburn of Regina and Mrs. P. Holman of Los Angeles; one brother, Jabez Lyne, O.B.E., member of the London County Council, England; three granddaughters in Los Angeles; one granddaughter, Margaret Woodburn, in Regina; one granddaughter, Dorothy Turner, wife of Rev. Warren N. Turner, rector of St. Stephen's Church, Mt. Newton; one grandson, Samuel John Woodburn of Regina; and one great-granddaughter.

The remains are at McCall Bros.' Funeral Chapel, where funeral services will take place Thursday at 3.30. Maj. O'Donnell of Vancouver will officiate, followed by cremation.

In accordance with his own request the ashes will be cast into the sea, Aug. 21, the 49th anniversary of his wedding day.

Resident of B.C. 73 Years, Dies

Mrs. Ada C. Robinson, age 91, a pioneer resident of British Columbia, died Monday at her residence, 21 Government Street. She was the widow of Capt. James Robinson.

Mrs. Robinson came to Victoria in 1869 from her birthplace in the village of China, Maine. In the following year she married James Robinson at Yale, he being a member of the first legislature elected in British Columbia after the union of the two Crown Colonies.

Capt. Robinson was an early navigator of the Fraser River and was well-known to all early settlers from Yale to New Westminster, being employed for many years as captain of passenger ships and later of survey ships for the Department of Public Works.

Mrs. Robinson leaves two daughters, Mrs. G. P. Farr, Victoria, and Mrs. James Sim, Saanich, and five grandchildren, Mrs. W. Matthews, Clifford, Frank and Robin Sim, Victoria, and Gordon Farr, Vancouver.

The funeral will be held from Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel, Wednesday at 3.30.

SHAMBOURK—Funeral services for Mrs. Emma Shambrook will be held Wednesday at 3 in the Holy Trinity Church, Sooke, by Rev. H. M. Bolton. Interment at Saseen Cemetery. Sands Mortuary is in charge of arrangements.

WAGLAND—Mrs. Isabelle Wagland, age 73, died today at Jubilee Hospital. Born in England, she had lived in Victoria for 53 years, her late residence being 522 Joffre Street, Esquimalt. She leaves two sons, William Thompson and Albert Wagland, at home; two sisters, Mrs. A. G. Gilchrist of Lake Hill and Mrs. R. Clayton of Esquimalt; also five nieces and one nephew. Mrs. Wagland was a member of the Rebekah Lodge of Victoria for many years. The remains are in the chapel of Sands Mortuary Ltd., from where funeral services will be held Friday at 2. Rev. R. C. S. Devenish will officiate. Interment at Ross Bay.

BURNS—Mrs. Bertha Burns, aged 73, died at the Jubilee Hospital, Friday. She was born in England and had been a resident of this city for 25 years. Her former residence was 54 Cadillac Road, Saanich. She leaves no known relatives. Funeral arrangements will be announced later.

WALKER—Mary Jane Walker, age 80, died today at St. Joseph's Hospital. Born in Kent, England, and a resident of Esquimalt for the past 34 years, her late residence was at 854 Old Esquimalt Road. She leaves two daughters, Mrs. W. Gaunt of Victoria and Mrs. J. Dugdale, with whom she lived; one grandson, Sgt. Maj. Grant Stevens of Esquimalt; two granddaughters, Mrs. John Carver and Mrs. Joan McCloy of Victoria; a brother and three sisters in England, and a brother in California. Funeral arrangements will be announced later by McCall Bros. Funeral Home.

MINESWEEPERS LAUNCHED
MIDLAND, Ont. (CP)—Two minesweepers were christened in a brief ceremony here Monday. The Magdalen was christened by Mrs. Howard Johnson, wife of the general manager of Midland Shipways Limited. A sister ship, the Manitoulin, was christened by Mrs. J. B. Greaves, wife of the British trade commissioner for Ontario.

No Concessions to Douk Employers

Employers who engage Doukhobors, who are not registered under the National Registration Act, will be subject to prosecution in the same manner as any violator of statutes, Acting Premier R. L. Maitland, said today.

"I have received a request not to prosecute certain employers who have employed Doukhobors who have failed to register under the National Registration Act," Mr. Maitland said.

Certain Doukhobors, he added, had shown the same disregard to the registration act they had displayed to other laws.

"Under the National Registration Act, every person who employs some one who is not registered is guilty of an offence. The refusal of the Doukhobors to register has been deliberate. As far as I am concerned the law will be enforced against these people as against those who violate our statutes," he said.

Mr. Maitland will leave by plane tonight for Windsor to attend the annual conference on uniformity of Canadian legislation. He will return by plane to Edmonton and proceed to Prince Rupert to look into the situation created there by the increased population and the attendant police difficulties. He will also survey conditions in Terrace and expects to be back in Victoria about Sept. 2.

COURTS RESUME
Supreme and County courts will resume their regular schedules two weeks from today as the long summer vacation closes.

On Sept. 8, the Court of Appeal will open its fall sitting here. The Exchequer Court of Canada will be convened Sept. 18 at the Courthouse, if there are any cases to be heard locally.

THE OTHER SENIOR COURT HERE, the Assizes, will open Oct. 13.

SERIOUSLY ILL
L.A.C. John James Allan, R.C.A.F., of Victoria, is reported seriously ill in the latest casualty list from England. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. James Allan, 2747 Graham Street.

U.S. SAILOR LIKES VICTORIA

The hospitality and friendly atmosphere of Victoria was praised in a letter received by the Chamber of Commerce yesterday from a storekeeper in the U.S. navy who had spent several days in the city a week ago. His name is A. H. Cameron.

The sailor told of the difficulty in obtaining a hotel room one night during his visit, and then mentioned one of the city constables who had discovered his troubles and took him to his own home for the night. Cameron praised a certain taxi driver who went to add trouble to see that he would reach a set destination, after a little trouble in finding an address in the dark.

"Another thing I liked," the letter said, "was the cheerful and friendly 'Hi, Yank' of strangers on every hand."

Self-Sufficiency For A.R.P. Districts

Plans for the making of A.R.P. districts more self-sufficient will be discussed when district wardens meet with civilian protection officers at the City Hall at 8 Wednesday night.

Already each A.R.P. district in Victoria has its own auxiliary fire post which is under command of the district warden. Plans are now under way to put first aid points in each district under the administration of district wardens rather than the A.R.P. medical officer.

During the discussions wardens will consider the results of the city-wide A.R.P. practice which was conducted the night of April 5.

Living in London Costly Business

By FOSTER BARCLAY

LONDON (CP)—You need a first-full of cash and a dash of thrill to live in this Empire capital these days when things not only are hard to come by but cost more than anyone dreamed of in peacetime.

Asparagus, for instance, costs the equivalent of 75 cents a bunch, a double whisky and soda, $1 a throw and a workingman's pint of ale about 25 cents. But that's only a starter for persons who live, eat and work here. Fun costs more in London than anything else. A married man of moderate means with a family must think twice before stepping out with his wife.

'EXTRAS' COSTLY

The government has pegged meals at $1.25 for a three-course dinner. But that doesn't mean anything in Soho or the big hotels where extras are charged for service, entertainment and surroundings. Add a few drinks, a theatre or movie and a couple of "quick ones" for the road and the night will cost at least $15 and sometimes $20.

It's the fellow—usually single and in the army—who wants to keep going after the pubs close who takes a beating. He's got to have about $25 more in the kitty. Entrance fees to "bottle parties"—equivalent to "bottle clubs"—runs about $3.75 a couple plus about $13 for a bottle of spirits.

So it's no wonder the average man and his spouse hold a huddle over the weekly pay envelope and save ahead of time for an occasional outing. Rent, food, clothing, and high income tax and the ordinary accumulation of household expenditures have to be considered before they can embark on what has become luxury spending.

Furnished flats run anywhere from $10 weekly for two rooms to $40 for a pretentious apartment with four bedrooms, two bathrooms, kitchen, dining-room and living-room.

For a family of four the weekly expenditure for food averages about $10. Then there's gas, light, coal, other household necessities plus cigarettes at 50 cents for 20.

Peaches—when the yare obtainable—cost about $1.50 each;
grapes 85 cents a pound; cherries 35 cents a pound and berries 50 cents for a small basket. Carrots, peas, potatoes and lettuce are cheap and plentiful.

Press Praises

Moscow Parley

LONDON (CP)—London's morning newspapers, commenting on the Kremlin talks of Prime Minister Churchill and Joseph Stalin, underlined second front possibilities and at the same time stressed the urgency of attaining more complete inter-Allied cooperation.

The News Chronicle said:
"We can be sure that decisions of the conference have been made in the spirit to launch an 'all-out' offensive against Germany as soon as circumstances permit."

NEW YORK (CP)—New York's leading morning newspapers today welcomed the announcement that Prime Minister Churchill had conferred with Premier Stalin.

Said the New York Times:
"In one of the great crises of the war Mr. Churchill has visited Moscow, as he had twice previously visited Washington, for the purpose of direct personal consultation with the leaders of an allied government."

"Time alone can reveal what decisions have been made. Whatever they are, they can hardly be more important than this fresh evidence of the close and friendly understanding now prevailing between the government of Russia and the two great democracies of the west."

ROAD WORKERS HIT

United States engineers and workmen putting through the international highway to Alaska also come under the "remote area" ruling, and do not need ration cards.

As all meats are subject to the maximum prices regulations, these must be observed when the

GEORGE MONTGOMERY, right, and John Sutton only have eyes for lovely Maureen O'Hara, and the pair battle it out for her favor in 20th Century-Fox's stirring tale of heroism and romance, "Ten Gentlemen from West Point," now at the Dominion Theatre. William Perlberg was the producer, and Henry Hathaway directed.

Rationing Hits Igloos, Tepees in Far North

By JAMES MCCOOK

OTTAWA (CP)—Although ration cards have yet to penetrate the Barrens, officials forecast today that there would be long faces in tents and igloos, and nonstop hollering of the tea kettle would become a thing of the past.

In the Yukon-Mackenzie district and eastern Arctic—an area of 1,300,000 square miles, with about 15,000 residents—Mountie and Eskimo, missionary and Indian, will wear no tickets from a ration book when they obtain tea, coffee or sugar. But a record will be kept of everything they buy, and it was expected rationing would be almost as effective as among the residents of the nine provinces.

Trading post managers and storekeepers have been authorized to provide their customers with rationed commodities for such periods as are required and to keep an exact record of such sales.

Eskimo buyers will have to show the storekeeper their identity disc which carries a serial number. And, when the record opposite the number shows that the master of the igloo has drunk as much as his ration permits, there will be no more tea.

The allowance for each northerner will be based on the ration allowance for other Canadians—one-half pound of sugar and one ounce of tea, or four ounces of coffee a week.

PRICE CEILING IN NORTH

Board officials said special price ceiling regulations cover trading regulations in the north.
When maximum prices regulations came into effect, prevailing rates in the north did not reflect replacement costs at the sources of supply, and last May the board authorized the Hudson's Bay Company, major northern supply concern, to add to its Sept. 15 to Oct. 1 basic period prices any actual increase in laid-down costs since the spring season of 1941.

As an indication of how the northern regulations work, officials cited the case of Yellowknife in the Northwest Territories, where an influx of miners had boosted the population of the district. The regulations provide for mining camps where the operator supplies meals to employees.

He registers with the board as an industrial user, and may then buy sugar in quantities sufficient to make up 70 per cent of the per diem amount used in corresponding quarters of 1941. In the same way he may purchase tea and coffee, completing a declaration of purchase for his supplier.

Hattie Williams Dead

NEW YORK (AP)—Hattie Williams, 70, actress who starred in many musical comedies around the turn of the century, died Monday. A native of Boston, she retired in 1915.

YORK THEATRE

It took glamorous Joan Bennett just three hours of instruction in cockney dialect to rid herself of the careful diction habits acquired through study in fashionable finishing schools.

In her latest 20th Century-Fox film, "Man Hunt," now at the York Theatre, in which she's co-starred with Walter Pidgeon, Miss Bennett portrays an East End London waltz, who drops her
"hainties" each time she talks.

Miss Queenie Leonard, erstwhile star of the London music halls, offered to coach Joan, and after three hours of intensive work she sounded like a native
East End.

DOMINION SCREENS
WEST POINT STORY

Twentieth Century-Fox brings to the screen the action-packed story, "Ten Gentlemen from West Point," currently at the Dominion Theatre.

Starring George Montgomery, Maureen O'Hara and John Sutton, the film has been called a rousing successor to "To the Shores of Tripoli," and boasts a climax which previewers claim will make you stand up and cheer.

It took 20th Century-Fox two years to prepare "Ten Gentlemen from West Point" for the screen, and more than three months to film. The story is set in the days when the future of West Point hung precariously on the shoulders of 10 courageous cadets rested the existence of "the citadel of heroes," and it is to their everlasting credit that they did not fail.

'MY GAL SAL'
COMING TO ATLAS

The little round man with the slight hesitancy in his speech whom you've seen in many a movie playing the role of a bartender—turns the tables in 20th Century-Fox's technicolor musical
"My Gal Sal" which stars
Rita Hayworth, Victor Mature, John Sutton and Carole Landis.
due tomorrow at the Atlas Theatre. He is Frank Orth, who will be remembered as the bartender in the "Kildare" pictures.

In "My Gal Sal," which tells the story of Paul Dresser, the composer brother of Theodore Dresser, Orth plays the role of a bibulous music publisher, who is never without a can of beer at his lips.

OAK BAY AND PLAZA
THEATRES

Apples may be unlucky for the medical profession since eating one a day is supposed to immu-nize prospective patients from all diseases, but the Andrews Sisters consider apples extremely lucky.

They scored their biggest individual hit in pictures when they revived "In Apple Blossom Time" for "Buck Privates," and thus assured their picture career.

They've been looking for another apple song ever since, and when "Don't Sit Under the Apple Tree" was submitted for Universal's "Private Buckaroo," their latest screen comedy musical, which is now at the Oak Bay and Plaza Theatres, they leaped at the song.

CADET THEATRE

Making her initial motion picture appearance, blonde, volatile Betty Hutton, known as Number One Jitterbug, is prominently featured in "The Fleet's In," new Paramount comedy with music, which is now at the Cadet Theatre, starring Dorothy Lamour, William Holden and Eddie Bracken. Also featured are Lief Erickson, Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra.

RIO THEATRE

Jack Oakie is a very happy man these days. Just a year ago he was thinking of giving up theatrical work and going into business. Then came his great comic impersonation of Mussolini in "The Great Dictator," and Hollywood was again reminded that Jack is one of the world's great comic artists.

Now Oakie has one of the funniest roles of his life as a dimwitted huckster in Mark Hellin-ger's "Rise and Shine," 20th Century-Fox's new musical comedy now at the Rio Theatre.

CAPITOL THEATRE

Rosalind Russell has a new leading man to add to her star-spangled collection.

He is Fred MacMurray and they are appearing together in Para-mount's new romantic comedy,
"Take a Letter, Darling," which is currently at the Capitol Theatre. In this film Miss Russell is a big business woman, Mac-Murray her secretary.

So far the lovely Rosalind has had for her romantic partners in the land of make-believe such screen favorites as Melvyn Douglas, Cary Grant, Walter Pidgeon and Don Ameche.
